'Cubers' find solutions in F.V.

BY MATT SZABO

Rubik's Cubes certainly can be a cause of frustration, but Saturday afternoon in Fountain Valley, it was just an exercise in fun.

The second "Day of the Cube" 3-by-3 speed cubing event was held at Los Alamos Park.

Ninety-five kids from around Southern California participated in the event, surviving the hot temperatures and even a bit of rain in the midafternoon.

The "cubers," as they are known, wore T-shirts with sayings like "Leave no cube unsolved," and "Eat, sleep, solve, repeat." They also had a special guest.

Max Park of Cerritos, 20, who holds several cubing world records, made an appearance and signed autographs.

Alex Tham of Yorba Linda, 12, had his parents and other family members there to support him. One made a sign that read "Go Team Alex," which featured an octopus — Alex's favorite animal — clutching two Rubik's Cubes.

Jewelry store owner fends off robbery

BY ERIC LICAS

A store owner opened fire at multiple armed people who allegedly forced their way into a Huntington Beach business in an apparent robbery attempt over the weekend and then fled in two vehicles, including one that later crashed in Los Alamitos.

The attempted heist occurred at about 4 p.m. Saturday near Algonquin Street and Davenport Drive, Huntington Beach police wrote in a tweet. Shots rang out "as the store owner defended himself," police said.

The owner of the business was not hurt, but a customer was struck by shattered glass and suffered minor lacerations, police said. Isabella's Fine Jewelry was identified as the shop that was targeted, a representative for the store said in an Instagram post on Sunday.

"We would like to thank our wonderful customers for all your outpouring support and well wishes," a store representative said. "We also would like to give our thanks to the Huntington Beach Police Department for all their hard work. We will be back in business as soon as we can."

The suspects fled the business in two vehicles that were seen heading north on the 405 Freeway, police said. One was later spotted and pursued by law enforcement before crashing near Katella Avenue and Wallingsford Road in Los Alamitos, Huntington Beach police spokeswoman Jessica Cuchilla said. Several people ran from the area, including a minor who was arrested and taken to juvenile hall on suspicion of robbery.

A description of any possible suspect in the armed robbery attempt and further information about it were not immediately released.

Heat wave sets records in O.C.

BY LILLY NGUYEN

The extreme heat wave that started Aug. 30 and sent crowds to the beaches to cool off over the long Labor Day weekend will stretch through at least Friday, according to weather officials.

Temperatures soared over the weekend, with new records set in inland Orange County cities like Anaheim and Santa Ana, where the mercury climbed to 107 and 108 degrees respectively on Sunday.

Meanwhile in coastal Orange County, Newport Beach recorded a high of 97 on Sunday — close, but not quite high enough to upend its previous record of 102 degrees set in 2017.

Amid this, Southern California Edison reported a power outage in Laguna Beach at 1:08 p.m. on Monday that affected 4,216 customers. Power was restored to all users at 6:56 p.m. the same day.

Spokeswoman Gabriela Ornelas said Edison was glad to have been able to restore service within the same day. She noted the utility had received reports of other outages related to the heat over the weekend, but the cause of the Laguna Beach outage was still under investigation as of Tuesday afternoon.

National Weather Service meteorologist Stefanie Sullivan on Tuesday said the massive upper level high pressure system hovering over the region for the past several days "doesn't seem to want to weaken or move. We've been stuck under this pattern that's bringing this heat."

"We've had some monsoon moisture moving in from the east [so there is humidity as well],"

BEACH VOLLEYBALL

Laguna Open beach volleyball tournament returns for 67th year

BY MATT SZABO

The Laguna Open beach volleyball tournament is celebrating its 67th year when play begins next weekend, making it the longest-running open beach volleyball tournament in the world.

Like anything that has been around for close to seven decades, the tournament has seen its share of ups and downs.

Tournament director Kirk Morgan has witnessed it all.

"It started in a very humble fashion and blew up in the 1980s and early '90s to be a tournament with a $100,000 purse, sponsored by the big alcohol companies," he said. "But then, the city outlawed advertising on sand, especially alcohol advertising on sand, and all the money went away. The tournament almost died. It went from being a $100,000 purse down to a $400 purse, and went from having the biggest names in the sport to basically being a poorly attended little regional tournament."

Morgan, who took over as tournament director in 2010, now can see it as something in between those two extremes. But he is excited, because big names are indeed expected in Laguna when the tournament starts Friday at Main Beach.

Sculpture contest aims to can hunger

BY SARA CARDINE

"Canstruction Orange County" — an eye-catching menagerie of sculptures crafted entirely out of canned and packaged food items destined for donation to the OC Food Bank — returned to Costa Mesa's South Coast Plaza on Saturday. Presented by the Community Action Partnership of Orange County, the design-and-build competition is now in its 15th year of bringing area architectural, engineering and design firms together to help the estimated 400,000 county residents experiencing food insecurity.

"It's really the most fun, whimsical, creative food drive you could imagine," Mark

Lowry, director of the OC Food Bank said Tuesday. "But it's also an opportunity for us to tell our story and keep the issue of hunger in front of people."

Thirteen participating groups worked on this year's local campaign to bring to life eight monolithic figures, mostly in-

Roasted Hatch chiles add to heat in Newport Beach

TRAVIS PEUGH, center, hands a customer a box of Melissa's roasted Hatch chiles during Bristol Farms' annual Hatch Chile Festival on Saturday.

TOM FRAKER, corporate executive chef for Melissa's, roasts chiles at the Newport Beach Bristol Farms.

As temperatures climbed higher and higher in Orange County over Labor Day weekend, Hatch chiles also brought the heat at a roasting event on Avocado Avenue.

Bristol Farms held a Hatch chile roasting event on Saturday as part of the grocers' Hatch Chile Festival, which promotes the peppers themselves but also food products that incorporate them. The festival was held at all of Bristol Farms' locations and began in mid-August.

Roasting events were held at other sites earlier this summer. The Newport Beach Bristol Farms began its chile roasting Saturday at 8 a.m. and continued until 2 p.m.

The next roasting event will be held this Saturday at Bristol Farms' location in Santa Monica.

Hatch chiles vary widely in terms of heat and flavor and are named for the area in which they are grown. Hatch, a town with a population of 1,700 in southern New Mexico, is the self-professed chile capital of the world.

Sullivan said. She noted a similar heat wave took place over Labor Day weekend in 2020. She added that heat waves aren't atypical for Southern California in September, often brought by Santa Ana winds as summer moves into fall. She said that what's remarkable about the current heat wave is the number of days it's continuing to pummel the area. Most, she said, tend to last around two to three days.

Sullivan said the region will see some eastern winds that tend to make coastal cities warmer, but there is also a possibility of some cloud cover from an incoming tropical system.

Daytime highs are forecast to be in the low 80s to mid-90s along the coast through Friday, with lows in the 70s.

The Orange County Health Care Agency extended its heat advisory through Tuesday, encouraging residents to take measures to avoid heat exhaustion and heat stroke.

Orange County has a number of cooling centers, which are free, indoor air-conditioned sites where members of the public can go to escape the oppressive heat. Healthcare officials warn residents to stay hydrated, wear light clothing, stay out of the sun and avoid strenuous activities if outside or in a building that does not have air conditioning.

place went to Dylan Garcia, 10, who lives in Orange.

Each of the top three received Amazon gift cards, presented by event organizer Amy Wojkowski of Huntington Beach.

Wojkowski, a teacher at Edison High, said she had 28 kids at the first "Day of the Cube" event in June 2021, but Saturday's event more than tripled that.

Wojkowski's 11-year-old son, Caden, was one of the competitors.

"I told him how to solve, and then he got fast," Amy Wojkowski said. "We tried to get him into a real competition, but they're hard to get into. There's not that many in Southern California, so I decided to make my own, and here we are."

take him to competitions to work on social skills. Max Park is one of two champions covered in the Netflix documentary, "The Speed Cubers," which was released in 2020. "Our goal was just for him to use this as a giant play date," Schwan Park said of the early days. "Autism therapy is expensive, so if we can take him to a competition where we thought everybody was a therapist, and it's free, we were like, 'Sign us up.'" Amanda Geddes, who lives in Irvine, said her family watched the documentary as a family recently. That ended up getting her son Marshall, 9, into cubing. Marshall felt an additional connection because he also deals with moderate autism. "He said, 'If Max can do it, I can do it,'" Amanda Geddes said. "He felt really inspired; it was really cute." So, does Marshall's new interest — Saturday was his first competition — mean the whole Geddes family will get in on cubing? Probably not. "My husband and daughter and I have all tried, and we just can't seem to grasp it like Marshall has," Amanda Geddes said. "This is definitely his special talent." Dashtyn Dinglasan, 8, traveled with his parents all the way from Los Angeles for the competition. His best 3-by-3 time is 24 seconds, more than respectful, especially considering he's only been cubing for a year. His mother, Eileen Tan, said she enjoyed the vibe of Saturday's event. "It seems like it's just about the joy of cubing," she said. "All ages are interacting and learning from each other."

spired by popular movies, books and children's characters, including a Tyrannosaurus rex, giant teddy bear and the Cheshire Cat. "This is not the sort of thing your average layman could produce," Lowry said. "It takes structural engineers and architects to figure out how to keep those things together without glue — that's the challenge." While teams have had months to conceptualize their creations, the actual can-struction largely took place during a 12-hour period, from Friday night until the following morning. Visitors to South Coast Plaza's Macys Home Store and nearby locations Saturday morning couldn't help but be intrigued by the overnight art takeover. A panel of judges will select standout entries in several categories, including most cans used, best overall design and best use of labels, and hand out awards in a Sept. 20 ceremony at the Newport Aquatics Center.

Members of the public can also nominate a "People's Choice" winner with $1 votes also benefitting the OC Food Bank, which in 2020 provided 63 million pounds of foods and served 500,000 individuals each month. Held in conjunction with South Coast Plaza's annual Festival of Children, "Canstruction" sculptures will remain assembled until the festival's final day on Sept. 25, at which point their components will be donated. The Food Bank will distribute the food items to clients and other families served by affiliate organizations countywide. Lowry said "Canstruction" is just one example of how an industry rallied together to make a difference in the community. "Everybody has an option, whether its through volunteerism, financial donations or being involved in another event like 'Canstruction' to become engaged," he added. sara.cardine@latimes.com

Edison stays perfect with win

BY MATT SZABO

Edison High football coach Jeff Grady said there wasn't much talk about last year's narrow loss to Orange Lutheran leading into this year's contest.

The Chargers came up just short then, after the Lancers hit a go-ahead field goal in the final minute.

"Obviously you watch the game and you see what happens," he said. "The kids all know what happened, but we can't do anything about last year."

This year's matchup came into the fourth quarter tied, and again seemed to be headed down to the wire.

But Edison flipped the script.

Two fourth-quarter interceptions on defense, by Carter Hogue and Dylan Walters, led to touchdowns on offense. The hosts rolled late for an impressive victory.

Edison beat Orange Lutheran 34-13 on Friday at Cap Sheue Field, improving to 3-0 this season.

"Our guys stepped up and really put pressure on their quarterback all night," Grady said. "We got a lot of pressure with our front four, and obviously some key turnovers. ... Of course I'm happy we're winning, but what's more important is how we're playing, the spirit we're playing with, the energy. You just try to grow a little bit more, week in and week out."

Edison has its first 3-0 start since the 2016 season after beating last year's CIF Southern Section Division 2 champion Orange Lutheran (2-1).

James Carbone

EDISON running back Carter Hogue (39) runs in for a touchdown in the fourth quarter during the Chargers' win over Orange Lutheran on Friday night.

Senior quarterback Parker Awad finished 17 of 25 for 203 yards. He had a pair of long touchdown passes to Ashton Hurley and Mason York, respectively.

Meanwhile, Hogue had career-best numbers at running back, with 16 carries for 138 yards and two touchdowns.

Nicholas Preston added a pair of field goals for the Chargers, helping them forge a 6-6 tie at halftime.

Orange Lutheran's Noah Rodriguez had scored a short rushing touchdown in the second quarter, but Edison's Jackson Irwin blocked the extra point.

Irwin had two quarterback sacks, putting an exclamation point on the win by recording one on the game's final play.

"That was definitely the biggest relief, for sure," said Irwin, who also forced a fumble. "It's the best feeling ever beating a Trinity League school. We really just stepped up today. I didn't want to lose to them two years in a row."

Dom Lopez added an interception for Edison, which was tied 13-13 going into the fourth quarter.

That was when things started to shift in the Chargers' favor. First, Awad hit York on a 58-yard bomb that allowed Edison to retake the lead with 7:19 remaining. On the ensuing Orange Lutheran possession, Hogue made a diving interception over the middle, giving Edison possession at the Lancers 38-yard line.

He said Edison running backs coach and defensive coordinator Mike Walters, who sees Hogue on both sides of the ball, asked him if he wanted a breather.

"I was like, 'No, coach, not right now. I'm fired up,'" Hogue said with a smile after the game. "You've got to try to stay on the field as much as you can."

Hogue then finished off a short, four-play drive with a two-yard touchdown run, giving Edison a 27-13 lead.

Orange Lutheran drove into the Edison red zone, but Dylan Walters jumped a route to the right. He returned it 60 yards all the way to the Lancers 25-yard line.

Five plays later, Hogue scored on a seven-yard touchdown run.

"He's doing a great job, and he's playing almost every snap, both sides of the football," Grady said. "Troy [Fletcher] did the same thing last year."

Logan Gregory, Noah Thompson and Jake Giles added quarterback sacks for Edison.

The Chargers will try to keep their momentum going next week, when they host Palos Verdes (1-2) on Thursday night.

"The way we played today, it showed a lot," Hogue said. "O-Lu is no joke. They're a Trinity League team and they play against Mater Dei, JSerra, [St. John] Bosco, Servite. They're legit, so this team, I feel really confident that we'll go very deep into the playoffs and have a chance of winning CIF"

BEACH

And the men's and women's tournaments will award $24,000 in prize money — up 30% from last year — to those participants.

"We're pretty proud," Morgan said. "We have a monster main draw. It looks like the much larger Manhattan Beach Open that was two weeks ago."

Four teams in each gender will qualify Friday for the 16-team main draw, which begins Saturday morning in a double-elimination format. Beach volleyball legends Randy Stoklos and Laguna Beach native Dain Blanton will be announcing the action.

The top two teams in each gender will receive wild-card bids into the AVP Tour Huntington Beach Open event in November.

Among the men's teams scheduled to compete in Laguna are Trevor Crabb and Tri Bourne, who won the Manhattan Beach Open last month. Another top team in the draw features Trevor's younger brother, Taylor Crabb, and Taylor Sander.

Taylor Crabb was selected as a Tokyo Olympian in beach volleyball last summer, but was replaced by Bourne due to a positive COVID-19 test. Bourne and partner Jake Gibb went on to advance to the Olympics round of 16 before being eliminated.

Avery Drost and Chase Frishman is another Southern California team that looks to win at Laguna. Drost and Frishman already have a pair of second-place finishes together on the AVP Tour this summer, at the Atlantic City and Virginia Beach stops.

The Laguna Open is a city tournament, but run in partnership with the AVP and California Beach Volleyball Assn.

On the women's side, Morgan said top players scheduled to compete include Sarah Pavan, who won the 2019 World Championships with her partner Melissa Humana-Paredes. Geena Urango and Savvy Simo, former standouts at USC and UCLA respectively, will also be players to watch, as will Hermosa Beach native Carly Wopat.

The local "Battle of the Beaches" competition will also return for a third year. The competition pits the four iconic volleyball beaches of Laguna against each other in a four-person battle, and Victoria Beach will defend its title against Three Arch Bay, Emerald Bay and Main Beach.

Overall, Morgan said tournament staff works hard to keep the feel of the Laguna Open as an old-school beach volleyball tournament, which the players appreciate.

"It's much more intimate than any of the other tournaments," he said. "People can almost sit with their feet right on the court, and that's a big thing from the old days. They would have people crowded around the courts, literally almost all the way up to the boundary lines. Nowadays, they're pushed way back and they're seated way up high in grandstands and everything."

"Our beach is so small that we're kind of forced to keep it intimate, but we like it that way, and the players love it because there's this instantaneous feel of feedback."
