Setting sail for the Newport Beach Christmas Boat Parade

BY LILLY NGUYEN

Little under two weeks remain until the start of the 114th Newport Beach Christmas Boat Parade, but participants are already finishing up final preparations on their boats to rock around Newport Harbor in one of the biggest holiday celebrations in the city.

The parade is traditionally held in mid-December and begins on Lido Isle.

This year's parade will begin on Dec. 14 and continue through the 18th with a variety of celebrations to mark the start of the parade that reportedly brings hundreds of people to the coastal city to see the lights on the water. At least 55 boats are registered to participate in the parade this year, according to Newport Beach Chamber of Commerce Chief Executive Officer Steven Rosansky.

But more are expected to sign up in the coming weeks. About 100 boats hit the waters for last year's parade, which returned after a year's hiatus due to the COVID-19 pandemic.

Roughly a quarter of this year's entrants are likely first-time participants, according to Rosansky, but many are returning entrants who look to step up the decorations and competition every year including parade

Police seeking suspect in fatal H.B. shooting

BY ERIC LICAS

Gunfire in Huntington Beach left one person dead Monday evening, and police were looking for whoever was responsible.

Nearby residents reported hearing gunshots at about 8 p.m. on the 5200 block of Tasman Drive, a few blocks northeast of the corner of Bolsa Chica Street and McFadden Avenue, Huntington Beach police said in a news release. Responding officers found a wounded man who died at the scene.

Orange County Coroner's officials identified the man who died as Jimmy Sengpaseuth, 31, of Los Angeles.

No arrest had been announced in connection with the shooting as of Tuesday morning. A description of any possible suspect was not immediately released, but grainy security camera footage captured what appeared to be a man fleeing the scene in a possibly a dark-colored sedan, police spokeswoman Jessica Cuchilla said.

Cole Smith and other nearby residents said the shooting may have taken place at a house on the corner of Cambay and Tasman that appeared to be the focus of investigators' attention Monday evening. He said the home was being rented and that the tenants tended to keep to themselves.

Police described the shooting as an isolated incident and said detectives have no reason to believe there was an ongoing threat to the general public. They did not immediately suggest a motive in their release.

'He just didn't reach out in time'

Friend remembers F.V. principal who leaped from Disneyland parking structure as a positive force, dedicated cellist.

BY ERIC LICAS

Principal and cellist Christopher Christensen was the life of the party at a private event in late October, just like he was at most of his gigs, longtime friend Dianna Gray said. He performed with equal measures of professionalism and glee as he and a small ensemble of musicians led a packed dance floor through the waltz.

"He was playing at his best," Gray, a fellow musician and a teacher with the Irvine Unified School District, said.

Christensen hammed it up in between sets, sporting a broad smile as he posed for photos with guests. He continued cracking jokes and being a source of support for Gray in texts and phone calls over the next few weeks, even as his life fell into turmoil.

"He didn't put any of that on his friends," Gray said. "He just didn't reach out in time. There were so many people who wanted to help him."

Like many, she was shocked when Orange County Coroner's officials identified the Westminster resident as the man who leaped to his death at Disneyland's Mickey and Friends parking structure on Saturday.

Balboa Island Holiday Home Walking Tour returns for 24th year

BY SUSAN HOFFMANN

When Irma Grime saw her home featured on the cover of the Balboa Island newsletter, "Island Bridge," she was thrilled. "I couldn't believe my eyes," said Grime, whose home will be included in the annual Balboa Island Holiday Home Walking Tour Sunday, Dec. 11. "I was [also] delighted that our [dog] Wolfie was in the picture."

The 24th annual tour, returning after a two-year pause due to pandemic restrictions, is the Balboa Island Improvement Assn.'s top fundraiser of the year.

Gail Vasterling, a Balboa Island resident since 1987 who has been involved in the home tour since 2009, is head of the publicity this year. "The money we bring in helps support all our other island activities," said Vasterling. "The pancake breakfast, summer concerts in the park, the parade, snow day, island decorations, just a few of the many things the home tour money helps support."

Vasterling explained, that the committee selection process for each year's tour begins in January. "We actually knock on people's doors to see if the homeowner is interested in being on the tour," said Vasterling.

The eight holiday decorated homes on the tour this year are a combination of old and new. "One home is 99 years old and is still in very good shape," said Vasterling.

Irma and Greg Grime, both retired, are the proud owners of the 99-year-old home featured in the tour this year. They purchased the 1923 five-bedroom Balboa Island beach house on Sapphire Avenue in 1989. The

N.B. firm workers ‘Share the Harvest,’ pack 15K boxes for O.C. Food Bank

BY SARA CARDINE

The Orange County fairgrounds in Costa Mesa were abuzz with activity this weekend as some 850 locals employed by investment management firm PIMCO packed 15,000 boxes of food and nonperishable items for area families in need.

Celebrating a milestone 15th anniversary of the Newport Beach-based corporation’s “Share the Harvest” event, participants set out to pack a record number of boxes, which will be distributed throughout the holiday season by Community Action Partnership of Orange County’s Food Bank.

Employees Saturday worked in eight separate assembly lines, filling boxes with meal kit items, such as canned fruit and vegetables, grains and cereals and gift cards recipients can use to purchase their own protein to complete the meal. Other items for families included diapers, formula and toys.

Community Action Partnership O.C. teamed up with PIMCO Foundation on a related endeavor in 2019, unveiling Clementine, a mobile food trolley designed to deliver healthy foods, nutrition information and even diapers for young families living where produce markets are scarce.

“PIMCO has a big commitment to ending hunger,” said Food Bank director Mark Lowry, who attended Saturday’s event. “They are such a great example of a company that invests in the community in which they do business.”

Lowry said the “Share the Harvest” boxes will be distributed among the more than 225 charitable partners within a network of soup kitchens, churches and other charitable organizations in Orange County, where an estimated 400,000 residents experience food insecurity.

Although the food bank currently distributes food directly to more than 1,400 seniors daily and in 2020 provided 63 million pounds of food, serving 500,000 individuals monthly, the boxes provided by PIMCO will help expand that charitable footprint by another 15,000 boxes.

“That will help us bridge the gap, or divide, between some of the needs of the community and the resources we have available to address those needs,” Lowry said. “Its perfect timing — that’s 15,000 families who might not have had a special holiday gathering this year.”

Suspect in attempted 2019 Irvine sexual assault found guilty

BY ERIC LICAS

Jurors found a man charged in the attempted sexual assault of a woman who was cleaning an office building in Irvine three years ago guilty on five criminal counts Monday.

Eduardo Gonzalez-Godoy admitted he was the man seen pointing a pellet gun that closely resembled a Glock 19 at the victim while she was working overnight on the 17800 block of Von Karman Avenue and trying to rape her at about 1:20 a.m. on Feb. 6, 2019. He was arrested the following day and subsequently charged with a misdemeanor count of brandishing a replica firearm and felony allegations of making criminal threats, second-degree burglary, assault with intent to commit rape and kidnapping to commit a sex offense.

Jurors spent about six hours in deliberation before finding Gonzalez-Godoy guilty of all charges. He is scheduled to appear at a sentencing hearing on Jan. 27. The crimes he was convicted of typically carry a sentence of at least seven years to life in prison, Deputy Dist. Atty. Jeffrey Boyd said.

The defendant took the witness stand on Thursday and said he intended to have sex with a woman when he left his home on the day of the attack, whether or not it was consensual. He initially went to a medical complex on Von Karman and was seen peering into its windows, according to a woman who testified that she was working alone inside the facility at the time.

Gonzalez-Godoy then made his way to the office, where a woman identified only as Jane Doe during proceedings was vacuuming. He said he searched the area to make sure she was alone before approaching her and propositioning her for sex.

He drew the pellet gun from his waistband when she refused and told him she was calling for help. They went on to struggle for control of the replica for about five minutes.

They wound up in a side room of the office and tripped over a piece of furniture. The victim managed to take what she believed at the time to be a real firearm away from him, then ran to another building to find her co-workers.

During trial, the defendant and his attorney, Randall Bethune, did not deny that he committed the attempted sexual assault. However, they claimed that no kidnapping took place, according to the legal definition of the term.

They argued that he did not specifically intend to bring the victim into the room where she eventually managed to take the pellet gun, and that their specific location in the business wasn’t relevant to her risk of harm. Boyd pointed out the room was further away from the building’s exits and out of view from its entrance. The prosecutor also noted the defendant told police he wanted to move toward that room because there were beds inside.

house, once known by locals as the “flower house,” sat on a lot consisting of sand, which didn’t deter the Grimes from making the purchase. “When I saw it, I fell in love with the light,” said Irma Grime.

Rather than tear down the two-story redwood house, the Grimes updated the structure and preserved the cottage charm so typical of Balboa Island. A year after moving in they added a garage with a rental apartment above. They relaid the sand-set patio bricks in concrete, updated the bathrooms, remodeled the kitchen flooring, cabinets and appliances. They kept the original doors, molding and many of the vintage wavy-quality windows.

Instead of full-sized closets, the house had funky little 4-foot tall closets that Grime referred to as “stoop-ins.”

“Three weeks after buying the home, I thought it was a terrible mistake,” said Grime. “My forehead was bruised and bumped from getting into the “stoop-in” closets. Our contractor found a way to add a walk-in closet for the master bedroom; I knew then this is my forever home.”

The Grimes have updated and loved their so-called tear-down over the last 33 years.

Despite experiencing the pressure of putting her home on display for the tour, Grime wanted to support the Balboa Island Improvement Assn. “I believe it’s the least we can do to express appreciation and gratefulness for living here,” said Grime.

Tickets for the Balboa Island Holiday Home Walking tour are $40. The event takes place Sunday, Dec. 11, from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. Visit balboaislandnbn.org for more information.

Christensen was principal at Newland Elementary in Huntington Beach after having served in the same role at Courreges Elementary in Fountain Valley.

“I hate when people leave this Earth with so many unanswered questions,” read a Facebook post shared from Christensen’s account that evening. “So, I hope this provides some insight and perspective ...”

He wrote he and his wife had gotten into a fight that resulted in his arrest. That happened on or about Nov. 15, and he was subsequently charged with misdemeanor counts of battery as well as child abuse and endangerment, according to court records.

Christensen pleaded not guilty to those allegations. In his post, he denied ever hitting his wife or the two daughters they were raising together. He also claimed that his spouse did not want him to get arrested and “she, too, has been trying to clear my name with little success.”

Christensen’s wife could not immediately be reached for comment. His attorney declined to discuss the matter on Tuesday, deferring to the statement he left on social media.

“... The events of that night have completely unraveled both of our lives,” Christensen wrote. “I am on the brink of losing my job, as I am out on administrative leave until my case is ‘resolved.’”

Christensen insisted on his innocence and blamed what he viewed as a “deeply flawed” justice system for his struggles. He had been scheduled to appear in court Monday, but the item on the docket has since been canceled.

He went on to express appreciation for the students and families he has met over the course of his career as an educator. He was with the Fountain Valley Unified School District for over 21 years, Gray said.

She described him as both professional and likable whether he was on campus or onstage. The last piece they played together was the theme from “Game of Thrones,” and she recalled struggling to suppress a laugh as his burrow furrowed with commitment to their performance.

“It’s such a serious piece, and he was so into it,” she said with a chuckle during a brief interview. “And if I know Chris, well, he’s a total jokester. He made it fun.”

Christensen was raised in a family of musicians, Gray said. His mother was a singer, and his father collaborated on the composition of “Baroque Hoedown,” more commonly known as the theme music for Disney’s Electric Light Parade.

Outside of his duties as a principal, he ran a business booking musicians for events and helped many local musicians find work, Gray said. But he played cello for passion, not money, often signing himself up for two or three shows a night even though he already had a stable income.

“He drove like a bat out of hell to get from gig to gig,” Gray said.

He held his last performance the night before he died. He called it a success, and went on to thank all of those he has played with over the years in his post on Saturday.

“We have had a blast performing all over and creating such fond memories together,” he wrote.

Christensen wrote that he and his wife married privately a little over three years ago. Gray said he had been managing loneliness for a long time and appeared to achieve a kind of happiness after meeting his spouse that she hadn’t seen in her friend in years.

“It was mostly through Facebook that I saw that,” Gray said.

On Tuesday, students gathered at Courreges Elementary in Fountain Valley to pay their respects to the principal.

“Mr. Christensen has been a respected leader in FVSD for over 20 years,” Fountain Valley Elementary School District officials wrote in a statement. “His contributions and connections to this community are immeasurable. He was a father, son, husband, brother, and friend to so many. His passing leaves us devastated and heartbroken.”

“Marlena and I love and adore each other and our relationship has been amazing ... up until recently,” Christensen wrote in his post.

“There is so much more I want to say,” he added. “But I am going to spend the rest of today reaching out to those closest to me to let them know how much I love them.”

mainstays like the Snoopy boat and the Last Hurrah.

Rosansky confirmed this year has no official theme, which leaves owners and captains to decide how they decorate their vessels.

The Last Hurrah will have a medieval theme, said Capt. Shaun Crossman, who called this year's decoration of the boat an improvement over a similar theme used in the past.

"We wanted to try out some new ways of building things that we hadn't done in the past this year," said Crossman. "We're doing a castle and a waterfall down the side of the boat. The waterfall is a new lighting effect that we're going to hope works."

Crossman said he and his crew finished decorating the 80-foot Ocean Alexander motor yacht this week, though there will still be a few nights spent working on programming lighting effects. Everything was built in house, which meant not much cost was accounted for in the decorating, he added.

"The boat sits here in Newport all year. It is its home port, and [the Christmas Boat Parade is] the biggest event in the harbor. [Boat owners Cathleen Vick and Rob Meadows] wanted to do it. We've had ... great participation with crowds," said Crossman. "Lots of kids on shore, and it's very important to the boss. We're entertaining the children ... [and] had a band play, DJs, special music; we've done all sorts of things to keep the crowd interacting with the parade.

"[Vick and Meadows] just wanted to do something to help out the city during the holiday times. They run an electrical contracting company, so it was kind of a nice fit for them to do something with lighting on the boat."

Snoopy boat owner Greg Killingsworth said viewers can expect much of the same fiery excitement from his boat's display as in previous years and decreed this year's theme to be a jungle cruise.

Killingsworth, who lives in Modjeska Canyon, said he's been participating in the parade since 2009. His boat, Paradise Found, is known as the Snoopy boat for featuring the iconic Peanuts mascot and his doghouse every year. Killingsworth said he initially bought the inflatable doghouse to infuse some holiday spirit into his vessel in addition to a handful of other lights and decorations.

This year, Snoopy will be featured alongside a fire-breathing lion, two giraffe sculptures and at least two exploding palm trees.

"We did 'The Polar Express' last year, but this year it's a jungle cruise adventure, which is similar to what we've done in the past but different in that it's more like what the 'Jungle Cruise' movie is about," Killingsworth said. "We've got four sources of fire on the boat and everyone wears a jungle hat and ... we just go for it, either go big or go home."

He said he tries to amp up the ante every year, though he often stays in the back because of the pyrotechnics and music.

"Everybody loves it on shore, but [everyone] in the parade is like, 'Oh my God, he's back at it again with the loud system,'" Killingsworth said.

Killingsworth said he spent around $500 on the decorations this year, the statues and pyrotechnics left over from past years. He finished decorating his boat over Thanksgiving weekend.

As for why he continued to participate, he said, "It's hometown. There are so many cool boats in the parade."

He noted watching the parade is often like a "Small World" Disneyland cruise.

"I'm a newbie to some of the guys that have been around," said Killingsworth. "But to see the amount of organization and dedication by all these people to put this on, [I'm] really [proud] to be part of a group that's just out there to make people happy at Christmas time."

HIGH SCHOOL FOOTBALL

L.B. falls in shootout, ending historic season

BY ANDREW TURNER

After the Laguna Beach High football team delivered the program's first CIF Southern Section title in 76 years, the community came out in droves for what would be the final home game in the Breakers' historic season.

Those in attendance were treated to a show, one that did not lack for drama, as Laguna Beach came up on the short end against Granada Hills Charter, 56-55, in the CIF State Southern California Regional Division 4-A bowl game at Guyer Field.

Granada Hills stuck to its formula of striking at will on the ground, compiling 487 rushing yards as a team. Senior workhorse Dijon Stanley, bound for Utah, rushed for 260 yards and four touchdowns.

"It's a great feeling," Stanley said of his team's offensive capabilities. "I feel like we're a high-caliber, high-powered offense, and we could come out any play and do anything, and that's what's very great about our offense.

"I love it. Not just me, but DJ Richmond, Kanye Martin, Darrell Stanley. They all can get it any play, as they did today. Any play, it could be lights out."

Both teams realized the shootout was on early, as the teams exploded for a combined 58 points in the first 15 minutes of game action.

It began with a 52-yard screen pass from Laguna Beach's Jackson Kollock to Nick Rogers, which led to a goal-line rushing touchdown by the sophomore quarterback on a play-action rollout.

Granada Hills (12-2), the L.A. City Section Division I champion, responded — as it did time after time — with a big run. Darrell Stanley had a 49-yard rushing touchdown on the Highlanders' first drive, Martin an 83-yard scoring run on the first play of their second possession, and Dijon Stanley a 55-yard sprint to the end zone on the third to take a 24-14 lead on the opening play of the second quarter.

In need of a spark, Laguna Beach (11-4) got it from its stand-out senior wide receiver in Jackson Rodriguez. Already with a touchdown grab to his credit,

A SCRAMBLING Jackson Kollock (12) finds a receiver for a touchdown during the CIF State Southern California Regional Division 4-A final against Granada Hills on Saturday. The Breakers lost 56-55.

Rodriguez ran back a kickoff for a 78-yard touchdown. Three plays later, Myles Freeman picked up a fumble, returning it 53 yards to give the Breakers a 28-24 edge.

Keeping with the theme, Dijon Stanley struck again on the ground 75 seconds later — this time on a 46-yard sprint — sending Granada Hills to a 30-28 lead and capping a torrent start that had the scoreboard lit up like a Christmas tree.

"That was fun," Rodriguez said. "It was just an absolute shootout."

Rodriguez turned his first two catches into touchdowns, the second giving the Breakers the lead back at 35-30. After getting a stop, it appeared Laguna Beach was set to go into the half with the lead after getting the ball back with 1:14 on the clock.

An attempt to build on the lead backfired. A 23-yard completion to Ryner Swanson got the Breakers near midfield, and then they spiked the ball. Consecutive in-completions thereafter stopped the clock, and the Highlanders made the most of the remaining 44 seconds, getting a 67-yard touchdown around the left edge from Dijon Stanley as the half expired.

"I think our kids played so hard," Laguna Beach coach John Shanahan said. "I wish I could do a few things over, to be honest with you, but we were trying to steal possessions here and there, ... so we tried to stay aggressive, and in retrospect, we probably should have done things a little different at times."

The Highlanders broke loose again on the first play of the second half, Darrell Stanley's 49-yard scamper extending the Granada Hills advantage to two possessions at 44-35.

A new face made a sizable impact for the Breakers after halftime. With injuries to Brock Donaldson and Freeman, Merrick Vellmure was prominently featured in Laguna Beach's offense.

Vellmure, who made six catches for 61 yards and two touchdowns, made a six-yard scoring grab, the start of a key run for the Breakers.

Sam Garwal then jumped on an inside kick, and although the Breakers could not cash in, they soon had the ball again when the Highlanders fumbled the snap on their next possession, the ball winding up in the hands of Micah Chavez.

Kollock made no mistake this time, finding Aidan Mulkey for a 20-yard gain before connecting with Swanson on a 17-yard touchdown. Laguna Beach was back in front 44-44 heading into the fourth quarter.

After Dijon Stanley's fourth rushing score, Laguna Beach methodically worked its way down the field, taking five minutes off the clock before Vellmure's second receiving score vaulted the Breakers into the lead once more. A Kollock incompletion on the two-point conversion attempt left Laguna Beach leading 55-50.

"It was surreal," Vellmure said of scoring twice in the regional final. "I couldn't believe it. I was finally here. This is my first year playing. It's great that I just got to be here."

It was the first time in the game that the Breakers had not kicked the extra point. Nico Vidaurri-Tucker was perfect in seven chances. Conversely, Granada Hills attempted two-point conversions after every touchdown.

Darrell Stanley dashed through the Laguna Beach defense on the ensuing kickoff, and the Highlanders had answered in lightning-quick fashion for the last time.

Laguna Beach's chance to strike back was derailed when junior defensive lineman Oliver Taylor came up with his second sack, a 14-yard loss for the Breakers on third-and-10 at the Granada Hills 40.

"I feel absolutely amazing right now," Taylor, who had two sacks in the contest, said of his team advancing. "It's the emotions, the adrenaline, the excitement. It's really an unreal feeling."

By the time the Breakers got the ball back, they had one play from their own 37-yard line, and Kollock was intercepted by Richmond.

Granada Hills will play at Novato San Marin in the Division 4-A state championship game on Saturday, Dec. 10. San Marin beat Atherton Menlo School 29-21 in the Northern California regional.

Kollock threw for 310 yards and five touchdowns, adding 40 rushing yards for another score. It marked the first time that the Breakers had lost a game with the sophomore starting at quarterback.

Laguna Beach defeated Diamond Bar 36-28 in the Division 9 championship game, the first CIF title for the program since 1946. Along the way, the Breakers picked up another Pac 4 League crown.

"We accomplished a lot," Shanahan said. "Hopefully, we just keep building, and building, and building."

NCAA WOMEN'S SOCCER

Laguna Beach High alumna helps UCLA win national title

BY MATT SZABO

Reilyn Turner scored the goal of her life on Monday night, at a time when the UCLA women's soccer team needed it most.

The Laguna Beach High alumna leaped for a header at the back post off a corner kick and put it in, tying the NCAA College Cup championship match at 2-2 in the 90th minute.

The goal with 16 seconds left forced overtime, and the Bruins got the go-ahead rebound goal from graduate midfielder Maricarmen Reyes in double overtime in a 3-2 victory in Cary, N.C.

Top-seeded UCLA (22-

2-1) won its second national title after earning a furious comeback win against No. 2 North Carolina (20-5-1). Turner, a junior forward who scored in both of the Bruins' College Cup wins, was named the Most Outstanding Offensive Player of the tournament.

Her goal in the final helped UCLA become the first team to rally from two goals down to win the College Cup title. It came off a corner kick from Ally Lemos.

"With this team, you can never, ever, ever give up," Turner told reporters in a post-match press conference. "We will always come back, have each other's back and work until the last second of the game ... I kept looking at the clock and I'm like, 'Give me the ball, play it in.'

"I knew we had numbers in the box, and [it was] just doing anything I could just to get something on it. I blinked, and the ball was in the goal."

Turner, the 2017-18 Daily Pilot Dream Team Girls' Soccer Player of the Year as a sophomore at Laguna Beach, finished the season with 11 goals for UCLA. That tied her for the team lead, and she also had three assists.

Reyes, who plays for the Mexico women's national team, is originally from Santa Ana and played one year at Segerstrom High.

UCLA, led by first-year head coach Marguerite Aozasa, also featured Costa Mesa native Faith Nguyen (sophomore goalkeeper), Marina High graduate Sofia Cook (freshman midfielder) and Corona del Mar native Jen Alvarado (junior midfielder) on its roster. Cook substituted in to play 25 minutes in the final.

The national title was the 120th NCAA team championship overall for UCLA, which trails only Stanford with 131.
