LOS ANGELES TIMES POLL
METHODOLOGY

This Los Angeles Times poll is the 486th in a series of opinion studies designed to measure public attitudes on a number of issues. This survey focuses on California's special election to recall Governor Gray Davis.

The sampling frame for this survey is all telephone residences in the state of California. One thousand seven hundred and forty-seven men and women 18 years of age or older were contacted by telephone August 16-21, 2003. The sample includes 1,351 registered voters of which 801 are considered likely to vote. An additional random sample of the state was also conducted over the same period and added to the sample. This brought the total number of Latino likely voters in the survey to 125. All racial and ethnic groups are proportionally represented in this survey even when there may not be enough in the sample to be specifically mentioned.

Results are adjusted to conform with census figures on characteristics such as sex, race, age, education as well as with the latest party registration figures provided by the California Secretary of State's office. Telephone numbers were generated from a computer list that includes all possible telephone exchanges in the state. Random-digit dialing techniques were used to ensure that both listed and unlisted residences had an opportunity to be contacted. Interviews were conducted in both English and Spanish.

Readers are reminded that, since survey research normally questions only a small proportion of the population, one must allow a certain margin for error. The margin of sampling error for the entire sample, registered and likely voters is plus or minus 3 percentage points. Margin of sampling error for Latino likely voters is plus or minus 9 percentage points. For certain other subgroups, the error margin is somewhat higher.

Surveys of this kind are sometimes subject to different kinds of inaccuracies for which precise estimates cannot be calculated and which may, in some cases, be even larger than the effects associated with sampling procedures. For example, findings may be influenced by events, which take place while the survey is in the field and, of course, events occurring since the time the interviews were conducted could have changed the opinions reported here. Several such events took place during this survey period. Governor Gray Davis and replacement candidates Arnold Schwarzenegger, Peter Ueberroth and Cruz Bustamante held press conferences. Schwarzenegger launched a TV ad campaign and his "economic summit" on the topic of the California economy was widely covered in the news. While the survey was not designed to track shifts in public perception on a daily basis, it did pick up movement toward increased support for the recall as well as increased support for Schwarzenegger's candidacy in the last two days.

Undetected flaws in the way the sampling and interviewing procedure were carried out could have a significant effect on the findings. Changing the wording of questions and the sequence in which they are asked can produce different results. Sometimes questions are inadvertently biased or misleading. People who responded to the survey may not necessarily replicate the views of those who refused to be interviewed or who could not be found at home during the time the survey was conducted. Moreover, while every precaution has been taken to make these findings completely accurate, other errors may have resulted from the various practical difficulties associated with taking any survey of public opinion.

Susan Pinkus directs the Los Angeles Times Poll under the general supervision of Dean Baquet, managing editor. Jill Darling Richardson is the associate director, Roger Richardson is the field director, Claudia Vaughn is the data management supervisor and Ray Enslow is the publications coordinator.

As you may know, there will be a special election to recall Governor Davis on October 7th. The recall ballot measure will consist of two parts. The first part will be a YES or NO vote on whether to recall the governor. The second part will list candidates running to replace Davis if he is recalled.

If the October 7th special recall election were being held today, would you vote YES to recall Governor Davis or would you vote NO, not to recall Governor Davis? (IF "DON'T KNOW," "HAVEN'T HEARD ENOUGH" OR "REFUSED," ASK) Well, as of today, do you lean more toward voting YES to recall Governor Davis or do you lean more toward voting NO, not to recall Governor Davis? As you may know, in a recall election, a replacement candidate does not have to win by a majority vote. However, because there are so many candidates on the replacement ballot, it is possible a new governor could be chosen with the support of less than 20 percent of the voters, even if for example, Davis lost the recall election by 51 percent to 49 percent.
Does knowing this could possibly happen make you more likely to vote in favor of recalling Governor Davis, or more likely to vote against recalling Governor Davis, or won't it change the way you are likely to vote one way or the other?
