STUDENTS WAIT outside the gate at Agnes L. Smith Elementary School on the first day of in-person learning on Monday.

'Tons of precautions': H.B. opens elementary schools

BY MATT SZABO

Cassie Orr said her two children were a bit apprehensive about returning to S.A. Moffett Elementary School in Huntington Beach on Monday.

"I think they kind of got used to being home all day with me," Orr said of Clifford, a fifth-grader, and Charlotte, who is in third grade. "But I was very excited. I am ready for them to be out of the house, and I feel like our school district has done the best they can as far as planning and taking as many precautionary measures as possible. I'm comfortable with them going back and happy that they're able to see their friends again."

Orr, the PTSA president at Moffett, knows the work that Huntington Beach City School District officials and teachers have undertaken to get kids back in the classroom. They have returned to class in the district's six elementary schools — some part of the morning session and some part of the afternoon session — for the first time since the coronavirus pandemic struck in March.

Children will be at school for 160 minutes four days a week; Wednesdays will still be distance-learning days. Peterson, Seaclyff, Smith, Eader and Hawes were the other Surf City elementary schools that returned to classrooms on a windy Monday.

The district's two middle schools — Dwyer and Sowers — return to in-person instruction on Nov. 2, with Huntington Beach Union High School District high schools — Edison, Fountain Valley, Huntington Beach, Marina, Ocean View and Westminster — returning the following day.

"They've taken tons of precautions, so hopefully it will go as well as planned," Spijkers said. "They've got tiny classrooms, and they're all sitting in plexiglass shields, and they're all wearing their masks. But at least they'll be near each other, which they haven't been in eight months, so that's good."

Campuses also now have directional walkways, messaging signs and floor stickers and mobile handwashing stations.

McKenzie Greer's third-grader Nixon also attends Smith Elementary. She said she is excited that he gets to experience school on campus again, although she has mixed feelings about all of the safeguards in place.

"I'm very anti-doing this, this whole masks, plexiglass, everything," Greer said. "I'm not OK with it. I don't like sending my kids [to school] that way, but it is what it is. Let's do it."

"I know that we need to be careful and things like that, but I wish there was a little more freedom for them when it comes to the school. But I'm happy they're back."

Smith Elementary Principal Maria Ashton, in her third year in charge, said bringing the school's 650 students back to campus helps bring some sense of normalcy.

"I think the fact that we opened a little bit after the other districts, we were able to see what they did, we were able to modify our plans a little bit," Ashton said. "At least here,

Schools shuttered due to air quality

Newport-Mesa Unified is among area school districts to close campuses in response to heavy smoke from the Silverado fire.

BY LILLY NGUYEN

The Newport-Mesa Unified School District closed its elementary school campuses Monday afternoon in response to poor air quality resulting from the Silverado fire, which began early that morning.

The district extended its on-campus closures through today. Secondary students in special education will be instructed through the distance-learning model. District officials said it would not impact students in elementary schools as it is a non-student day, and they anticipate reopening on Thursday, pending improvement in air quality.

The Laguna Beach Unified School District said it would reopen for in-person instruction on Wednesday after closing its schools Tuesday due to extreme weather conditions, poor air quality and "unpredictable power outages." Deputy Supt. Leisa Winston said in an email Tuesday the district would monitor for air quality and provide indoor spaces to all students if needed.

An advisory from the South Coast Air Quality Management District said that strong Santa Ana winds were pushing smoke plumes from the fire southwest into Irvine, Costa Mesa and Newport

County officials estimate that about 52,643 patients have recovered.

H.B. City Manager Chi denies accusations of improper email search, sexual harassment

BY MATT SZABO

Huntington Beach City Manager Oliver Chi has been accused of asking City Chief Information Officer Behzad Zamanian to conduct an improper email search, the latest controversy at Surf City's City Hall as Election Day fast approaches.

Chi was also accused of sexual harassment earlier this year by a former secretary who claimed that he improperly hugged her, though she took a settlement before an investigation was completed.

A Sept. 29 letter from Zamanian's attorney, Daniel Rashtian, to Huntington Beach City Atty. Michael Gates alleged that Chi ordered Zamanian to conduct a search of Gates' emails on or about Sept. 11.

"The search ordered by Mr. Chi was an extremely invasive search that would require Mr. Zamanian to open up all of your emails," the letter to Gates read. "Mr. Zamanian refused to perform such a search without your approval."

Chi said Tuesday that neither he nor the city did anything wrong. He said he was asked by City Councilman Mike Posey to look into the situation.

"It's accurate that I asked [Zamanian] to look for the emails," Chi said. "He told me he did the search and there was nothing ... and I consistently told him to only do it if he was comfortable. He told me he was fine with it."

Chi said the city had public records requests to release any emails Gates might have sent, which were referring to a conflict Gates was having with the Hunt-

Five candidates are on the ballot for the Laguna Beach City Council going into Election Day, Nov. 3.

The candidates include two incumbents in Mayor Bob Whalen and Mayor Pro Tem Steve Dicterow.

There are three challengers for the two seats that are up for grabs in Ruben Flores, Larry Nokes and George Weiss.

The Daily Pilot sent a questionnaire to all candidates for City Council in its coverage area to get a sense of who they are, why they are running and what issues they believe matter most in their communities. Some responses have been edited for formatting, length or clarity.

District officials said all Corona del Mar zone schools initiated an early student dismissal of the Monday morning cohort and canceled in-person instruction for the afternoon. Less impacted schools in the Newport Harbor, Costa Mesa and Estancia zones completed their morning cohorts but canceled their afternoon sessions.

Elementary schools first reopened in the district on Sept. 29. The closure does not affect secondary schools, which have not yet reopened.

sponse to the smoke,” Supt. Russell Lee-Sung said in a statement. “We also hope that the fire will quickly be controlled by the Orange County Fire Authority and that all residents in the evacuation area remain safe.”

Officials said that in-person instruction was canceled Tuesday but that teachers or principals kept in touch with students and families on distance-learning plans for the day.

As of Tuesday evening, the Silverado fire had burned through 12,600 acres and was at 5% containment. Mandatory evacuation orders were issued for at least 60,000 residents in Irvine, including all homes north of Irvine Boulevard between Bake Parkway and Jamboree Road, according to Irvine city officials on Monday.

Mandatory evacuation orders for residents south of Portola Parkway and west of the 133 Toll Road were lifted Tuesday along with those for Irvine residents living east of the 133 to Portola High School and those north of Great Park Boulevard to Irvine Boulevard. All other evacuation orders remain in place.

The Orange County Fire Authority reported that 70,000 homes in Irvine, 8,000 homes in Lake Forest and 2,500 homes in Yorba Linda had been evacuated.

Evacuation orders Monday included residents between Great Park Boulevard and Bake Parkway and north of Toledo Way until the city limits. They included residents in areas from Irvine Boulevard south of Trabuco Road and from Jeffrey Road East to Portola High School.

UC Irvine continued suspension of campus operations through Tuesday.

The fire began at around 6:45 a.m. Monday near Santiago Canyon and Silverado Canyon roads. About 500 firefighters have been deployed to help fight the blaze.

The National Weather Service issued a red flag warning due to high winds. In nearby Laguna Beach, Fire Chief Mike Garcia issued a local red flag warning effective through Tuesday.

A second brush fire — the Blue Ridge fire — broke out Monday near the Green River Golf Club in Corona but went west into Chino Hills and toward Yorba Linda. The fire had burned through 15,200 acres and was 0% contained at press time. About 2,500 homes in Yorba Linda were evacuated. Fire officials said Tuesday evening that 10 homes had been damaged.

response. We have not cut our public safety services or dipped into our reserves. We have introduced several innovative measures to help local businesses. Moving forward, I will urge us to make permanent many of our temporary measures, including the Forest Avenue Promenade and the ability of restaurants and retail businesses to operate outdoors.

This summer, the Orange County area saw demonstrations related to issues of social justice, policing and inequity. How do you think constituents view these issues, and how would you address them on the dais?

Laguna Beach is a community with a wide range of diverse political views. I am a firm believer in the right of the public to peacefully assemble and demonstrate. I believe that our citizens appreciate the city's past even-handed responses in balancing the right to assemble with maintaining public safety. I will continue to support this philosophy.

State housing allocations over the next several years may require the city to zone for 393 units (RHNA). How would you maintain residents' quality of life while addressing the housing crisis?

This issue will be addressed in the next two years with the update to the city's Housing Element. We need to energize the community to get involved with this process to bring their ideas and [to] work with us for innovative solutions. I would support hiring a specialist in this field to help with our efforts.

What else would you focus on as a council member?

My focus will always be to preserve the best of Laguna: the safety, beauty, charm and character of our city and neighborhoods. This means working to minimize the impacts of tourists on our neighborhoods while reducing the constraints on businesses to better serve both residents and visitors.

ent areas of the city, North Laguna, South Laguna, downtown and the canyon.

What else would you focus on as a council member?

Our town is on the cusp of a big reawakening regarding development. It is crucial that this redevelopment be guided in such a way that our historical and village atmosphere is not diluted with generic, non-detailed architecture that would ruin the romantic notion of who [and] what defines Laguna Beach ... Public safety is of utmost importance.

What are your thoughts on the city's response to the COVID-19 pandemic? If elected, how would you help the city recover?

The city's response has been good. Public meetings are held via Zoom to encourage maximum participation. Introduction of outdoor retail and dining has been crucial for survival of the commercial zones. Mandatory wearing of masks has helped tamp down the spread. I would continue these efforts.

This summer, the Orange County area saw demonstrations related to issues of social justice, policing and inequity. How do you think constituents view these issues, and how would you address them on the dais?

Citizens expect nothing less than an appropriate response to a specific situation. Too many have died after it became clear that they posed no threat. I support constant and current situational recognition and deescalation training for law enforcement.

State housing allocations over the next several years may require the city to zone for 393 units (RHNA). How would you maintain residents' quality of life while addressing the housing crisis?

I want to create as much housing as possible within existing structures. Allow conversion of underutilized office space to residential. Allow ADUs and JADUs on existing properties and inside existing buildings.

What else would you focus on as a council member?

Parking, traffic and circulation are big issues in Laguna Beach. Visitor parking in neighborhoods is hurting the livability for residents in those neighborhoods. We must provide parking. We must continue to support outdoor dining. We must continue our revitalization efforts in our commercial areas. Expand the seasonal use of festival grounds. Protect our beaches and our trails.

What are your thoughts on the city's response to the COVID-19 pandemic? If elected, how would you help the city recover?

The response to COVID has worked. The city projects a $17-million budget shortfall. This demands fiscal prudence so we don't run short if a natural disaster occurs. I recommend curtailing expenditures for expensive new planned projects, such as the $10 to 15 million for a new parking structure behind City Hall. We also need to look at repurposing brick-and-mortar retail.

This summer, the Orange County area saw demonstrations related to issues of social justice, policing and inequity. How do you think constituents view these issues, and how would you address them on the dais?

Laguna is a community of people who care about each other and who tend to pitch in when a fellow resident needs help. That said, there is income inequality here. I would support increasing the minimum wage to $15 per hour with benefits provided for those working part time, like restaurant and hospitality workers.

State housing allocations over the next several years may require the city to zone for 393 units (RHNA). How would you maintain residents' quality of life while addressing the housing crisis?

We must zone for these units, and a likely area would be the industrial zone along Laguna Canyon Road between Ganahl Lumber and LCAD. ADUs are another solution. To build affordable housing, we must have public [and] private partnerships to make this happen. This is a goal of the 2016 Cultural Arts Plan. I would work to reinvigorate that plan.

What else would you focus on as a council member?

Fiscal responsibility in which everyone pays their fair share so that it's not just residents handling the costs of 6.5 million visitors; compatible, smart development that is compatible with the unique architectural character of our town's buildings; protecting our unique and fragile urban landscapes, open space, ocean and coastline for future generations.

What are your thoughts on the city's response to the COVID-19 pandemic? If elected, how would you help the city recover?

As mayor, I have been involved in our daily decisions related to COVID-19 such as closing and opening beaches and businesses. I believe that our local response has been outstanding. We have adopted programs to support local businesses, hand out free masks, ban evictions of renters and create outdoor spaces for safe dining, all while putting public health considerations first.

This summer, the Orange County area saw demonstrations related to issues of social justice, policing and inequity. How do you think constituents view these issues, and how would you address them on the dais?

Laguna Beach residents strongly support the right of peaceful protest for all. In June, I brought a proclamation to council to declare our opposition to police brutality and support for the peaceful exercise of 1st Amendment rights. While our residents strongly support our police department, we established a taskforce to review department policies to ensure that best practices are followed.

State housing allocations over the next several years may require the city to zone for 393 units (RHNA). How would you maintain residents' quality of life while addressing the housing crisis?

I would protect our neighborhoods by zoning for more residential units in our commercial zones and in our industrial area on Laguna Canyon Road. Part of the RHNA need can be met by encouraging accessory dwelling units on existing single-family lots. I would look for opportunities to create affordable senior housing with city assistance.

What else would you focus on as a council member?

My number one priority always has been, and will continue to be, public safety. I will implement the Wildfire Mitigation and Fire Safety Plan to protect against a major wildfire. I will work to add resources to better manage beach crowds that have been adversely impacting our neighborhoods. I will protect our neighborhoods by adding more parking near PCH.

Marilyn White Tucker

September 13, 1927 - September 25, 2020

Marilyn, a resident of Newport Beach since 1961, died peacefully at home, surrounded by her family. Born and raised in Glendale, California to Marie Dantuma White and Willard Lewis Karl White, her heart of gold and movie-star looks were eclipsed only by her radiant smile and ever-positive attitude.

Marilyn was welcoming and kind, with a magnetic personality and hilarious sense of humor that attracted people to her wherever she went. From traveling to the corners of the world, hosting unforgettable parties at her home on Evening Star Lane in Dover Shores or The Springs, Rancho Mirage, Marilyn was born with an unquenchable zeal for life. She was grateful for each and every moment on this earth, which led her to her signature term, "perfect." Everything was always perfect in her world.

Marilyn graduated top of her class from La Sierra Academy and College, where she soon after married the love of her life, Dr. Royal D. Tucker (deceased 2017), and became a medical lab technician. However, her favorite role in life was being a mother, grandmother and great-grandmother. And wow was she amazing at it!

She will be greatly missed by her three daughters, Patti (Billy) O'Desky of Newport Beach, Joni (Rusty) Sherwood of Colorado and Cathi (Jim) Bledsoe of Newport Coast; grandchildren, Aly O'Desky, Charley O'Desky (Zulekha), Mark Sherwood (Emily), May Engelstad (Jeff), Mazie Suliman (Joe) and Piper Bledsoe (fiance' Sean Heitzler), as well as great grandsons, Teddy Engelstad, Enzo Sherwood and Francis Suliman.

A small gathering of family and friends celebrated Marilyn's life on October 1, just as she would have wanted with yellow flowers everywhere, guests wearing bright colors, and many, many laughs.

For her final act, Marilyn donated her body to Loma Linda University Health for research to eradicate Multiple Sclerosis, a disease she was diagnosed with at the age of 53. Explaining my run for N.B. City Council

Besides having a natural interest in civic matters nurtured by my parents, the day that I decided seriously to run for Newport Beach City Council, District 2 came when the beautiful mature trees at Ensign Intermediate School came crashing down, and not one elected official was there.

The experience of watching crews remove the trees, which was heartfelt by many residents in the Heights and Cliffhaven neighborhoods, drew no support or sympathy from City Hall.

We would have at least expected some interest by the council member from our district, Brad Avery.

Actually, many of my leadership and organizational skills came from years in the Girl Scouts organization, from Brownies through seniors in high school.

And that familiar saying holds true, “Once a Girl Scout, always a Girl Scout.” I finished my college education at UCLA in Environmental Design and eventually opened my own design firm, currently called “Space Squared.”

What skills do I bring to the table that qualify me as a conscientious, independent and serious council member? No one, even on City Council, attends more civic meetings on a regular basis than I.

Initially involved in environmental issues through SPON and Banning Ranch, I gradually branched out to almost every aspect of city government, council, town hall and Newport-Mesa Unified school board meetings, the public meetings for election reform, the homeless task force, the aviation committee, planning commission and zoning administration meetings, Orange County Board of Supervisors meetings, and what will be our biggest challenge after COVID-19, the public meetings of the new Housing Element Update Advisory committee.

And at the time I was attending these meetings, I

In order for the county to move to the “moderate” tier, the adjusted daily case rate will need to fall between 1 to 3.9 for every 100,000 residents, and the healthy equity quartile positivity rate will need to fall between 2.2 to 5.2%.

SOFTBALL

MARINA'S BRIANA GONZALEZ COMMITTS TO EASTERN ILLINOIS

BY ANDREW TURNER

Recruitment had only just begun for Briana Gonzalez when it was abruptly put on hold.

The coronavirus pandemic dealt a blow to many spring sport athletes who did not have a chance to take the field for an entire season. For softball players like Gonzalez, the pandemic also resulted in the loss of a major stage to compete on, with the cancellation of the Premier Girls Fastpitch Nationals.

Gonzalez, a senior infielder for Marina High School, put some of those troubling times behind her in announcing her commitment to the Eastern Illinois University softball program last week.

A 5-foot-7, 145-pound infielder, Gonzalez hit .250 with three home runs and five runs batted in while playing in 11 games during a virus-shortened junior season. She had also moved over to shortstop after beginning her high school playing career as a third baseman.

Recounting her recruiting experience, Gonzalez recalled losing contact with schools that she had been talking to before the pandemic. She was grateful to see the lengths to which Eastern Illinois went to secure her commitment.

Gonzalez indicated that she was able to speak with Eastern Illinois coach Tara Archibald, as well as the rest of the coaching staff, some athletic department personnel and even a professor in her probable field of study.

"They made such an effort to recruit me, and I really appreciate that," Gonzalez said, adding that all of the correspondence took place over Zoom. "They went out of their way. They didn't have to bring on someone from the criminology department [or] their players."

Shelly Luth, who coaches the Marina softball team with Dan Hay, said that Gonzalez has lived up to what she envisioned of the talented infielder in her first impression, calling her competitive, intense and tough.

Luth shared an anecdote that demonstrates just how competitive Gonzalez can be.

"We're playing this stupid dice game, and she goes, 'We're not leaving here until I have won,'" Luth said, recalling a team game of Tenzi in the weight room. "That's how she takes the field, and even when she's struggling, she always is just trying harder. She hates to lose, and I love that quality about anybody. I think she hates losing more than she likes winning, like me."

On the travel softball circuit, Gonzalez plays for a Firecrackers 18-and-under team coached by Sean Brashar. Her competitiveness comes in handy in trying to earn playing time with that group.

Both of Marina's middle infielders have committed to college softball programs. Second baseman Taylor

Lane, formerly a Daily Pilot Dream Team selection, has committed to St. Mary's.

If conditions allow for a high school softball season to be played in 2021, Gonzalez and Lane likely share the same goal of winning in the CIF Southern Section playoffs. The Vikings lost in the first round in their freshman year at Esperanza and then in their sophomore year as the No. 1 seed in Division 2 against Temecula Valley.

things have gone incredibly smoothly, which I would have preferred to rushing into opening and then having things go wrong."

HBCSD interim Supt. Greg Magnuson said in an email that he had been out visiting the district's elementary schools Monday, and many parents are accompanying their students to school and engaging with school staff to better understand new school routines and health and safety precautions.

Students or staff with low-risk COVID-19 symptoms will be sent home but may return to school 24 hours after the symptoms' resolution, according to guidelines released by the district. Those with high-risk symptoms, including cough, difficulty breathing and/or loss of taste and smell, will require evaluation by a healthcare provider.

"Despite today's high winds, local power outages and unhealthful air quality advisory, HBCSD students have returned to school in high numbers," Magnuson said in the email. "Overall, it has been a smooth start with our elementary school morning sessions. Further, at the mid-day break our cleaning and disinfecting teams performed their work as per our plan and like the morning sessions, our afternoon students have reington Beach City School District. There was a concern that Gates might have been inappropriately using city letterhead in his correspondence with the district, though he denied those charges Tuesday.

"After many searches and requests performed six months ago, neither my office nor the school district were able to locate any such letter," Gates said. "That charge was proven untrue. The city attorney office emails are highly privileged and confidential, private attorney communications and work product that belong to the client city, and out of the reach of individual council members on political errands."

Chi reiterated that there was nothing improper in asking Zamanian to look into possible emails, but the situation quickly escalated. The letter alleges that Chi and Assistant City Manager Travis Hopkins attempted to force Zamanian to resign during a group meeting on Sept. 22. He was then asked to sign a separation agreement and voluntarily resign on Oct. 30, the letter alleges.

Zamanian, who was put on administrative leave, is also alleging age discrimination and that Chi attempted to force him to take an early retirement incentive plan when he wasn't interested in doing so.

"There are several complaints that Mr. Zamanian and his attorney have raised, as part of an ongoing dialogue regarding his employment status with the city," Chi said. "Any individual can allege what they would like to allege. As we continue to work through the issue, given that it's an ongoing personnel manner and we're in discussions with Mr. Zamanian and his attorney, it would be inappropriate to comment further."

Chi's former secretary, whose name is being withheld, alleged that Chi created a hostile work environment due to his constant hugs. She ended up recanting her accusation in exchange for six months paid leave from her job before resigning in August.

Chi denied any inappropriate actions and said the city was going to investigate before the secretary asked for the settlement.

"We started the investigation, but the very next day after she filed the complaint, her union reps called us and said she wants to negotiate a settlement to leave," Chi said.

He added that the secretary was the subject of two investigations for improper conduct prior to her allegations against him.

Gates said his conflict with the school district was over a gate that he installed behind his home so his children could enter the campus of Seaclick Elementary School. He installed the gate by removing a portion of chain-link fence, which he said had been erected to keep the homeless population off school property.

Gates said he eventually turned to school in an otherwise seamless manner."

Hawes Elementary PTSA president April Helliwell has two kids at Hawes; Bryce is in fifth grade and Blake in third grade. Helliwell said that Monday morning she helped organize a valet drop-off service in front of the school.

Last month, Helliwell organized a rally in front of the district office protesting the fact that kids weren't back on campus yet. Elementary schools in the Fountain Valley, Ocean View and Newport-Mesa Unified school districts each had opened for hybrid learning by late September.

Helliwell said that after the rally, communication from the district to parents improved. She added that many of the parents she knows are proponents of the split a.m./p.m. system the district ultimately put in place.

"Everyone is very excited to have their kids back in the classroom," Helliwell said. "And everyone is very pleased with the current schedule that they put together for us, this morning and afternoon cohort that is similar to what Fountain Valley is doing ... The more face time that we can get with our teachers, the better. This way, our students are seeing their teachers four out of five days of the week."

took the gate out and put the fence back in.

"People still access it today by climbing the chain-link fence, but the gate has been out for months now," he said. "We dealt with this over six months ago, and it's all put back to status quo, what it was before."

The allegations against Chi surfaced just days after interim Police Chief Kelly Rodriguez resigned, citing political divisiveness within the city and the police department. Earlier this month, the Huntington Beach Police Managers Assn. endorsed a political mailer that was highly critical of three Democratic candidates for City Council — Dan Kalmick, Natalie Moser and Oscar Rodriguez.

"Shortly after Chief Rodriguez took charge, the PMA, independently, and without consultation with Chief Rodriguez, chose to enter the political arena to help preserve law and order in Huntington Beach," PMA President David Deresynski wrote in a letter to Chi and City Council members on Monday. "We considered many factors, including public safety concerns, then made the tough decision to endorse a mailer which opposes three City Council candidates who we believed did not share our organizational values or support department or community interests."

In the letter, Deresynski said sources have indicated to him that City Council members with differing views conspired to coerce Chief Rodriguez to publicly denounce the PMA, and she was told that if she refused, she would be forced out of her interim position. Deresynski wrote that those actions "have significantly destabilized the police department."

Councilwoman Kim Carr, named in similar allegations on social media last week that she had collaborated with Chi to get Rodriguez replaced, denied them on Friday.

"Absolutely not true," Carr said. "I never said anything like that to Oliver, and I never would. That would be completely inappropriate. Quite honestly, City Council doesn't have that kind of power."

Carr said the last she had heard was that Rodriguez was going to be interim chief until a replacement was found.

"Her decision not to get in the middle of an internal political fight is totally her call," Carr said. "I haven't talked to her about it ... For people on Facebook who want to paint a different picture, that's not uncommon. I'm used to getting attacked on Facebook because I'm a Democrat."

Huntington Beach Mayor Lyn Semeta said Tuesday that she believes the current situation reflects the increased power that public safety unions play in the workings of government, both locally and statewide, and that decreasing their role in elections would benefit everyone.

"Election season is usually fraught with politically charged rhetoric," said Semeta, who is not running for a second term on City Council. "With the frustrations of COVID this year, the situation seems even more heightened. Despite all the allegations being made, the important priorities are being handled at City Hall."

"It would have been my strong preference to have Kelly Rodriguez continue as the interim police chief because she is eminently qualified for that position. But I trust her when she tells me that the police management team who will remain is absolutely qualified to keep our city safe, whatever comes our way."
