SUNFLOWERS IN THE "gold rush" variety are picked by a guest on the Sakioka family fields in Costa Mesa. The fields are being leased by Tanaka Farms to grow flowers for the public to view and pick. An estimated 12,000 people have visited the fields since they opened to the public on Mother's Day weekend.

Tanaka Farms plants roots with Hana Field

BY LILLY NGUYEN

Just as young sunflowers follow the sun, visitors craned their heads skyward to greet some of blooms towering over them.

People cradled white, plastic vases with bunches of sunflowers — some yellow, some red — and zinnias, their small pruning shears at hand in case they might spy another flower to take home.

Beneath a bright summer sun late Friday afternoon, Hana Field — hana, being the Japanese word for "flower" — was bustling with enthusiasts that'd largely heard about its existence by word of mouth or through Tanaka Farms itself, who are the newest lessees and operators of the plot of land at 427 Anton Blvd.

"We just started leasing the field from the Sakioka family this year," said Ken Tanaka, a fourth-generation farmer who owns and operates Tanaka Farms with parents Glenn and Shirley Tanaka.

"We have our main farm in Irvine and when they offered us to lease the field in Costa Mesa we thought it might be a good opportunity to try something new. We have never grown flowers on this large of a scale, so we thought it would be a great 'u-pick' flower opportunity plus a great picture opportunity as well," Tanaka said.

The 30-acre field opened to the public on Mother's Day weekend in May, and Tanaka estimates that at least 12,000 people have visited since then.

Field manager Brandon Flores said the field's currently on its second crop of sunflowers and will soon be on its third.

RHONDA BOLTON is sworn in by Huntington Beach City Clerk Robin Estanislau during Monday night's special meeting.

Rhonda Bolton named to H.B. council

An attorney who has served on the city's Human Relations Task Force, she was sworn in to fill Tito Ortiz's seat.

BY MATT SZABO

Huntington Beach has found its seventh City Council member.

On Monday night, the Council voted 4-2 to appoint lawyer Rhonda Bolton to the seat vacated when Tito Ortiz resigned on June 1.

Bolton was one of 105 candidates who were interviewed by the council over two lengthy sessions earlier this month. During a special meeting held July 19, the council was unable to reach a consensus on naming Ortiz's replacement and the matter was continued to this week.

Mayor Pro Tem Barbara Delgleize, who had voted last week for another candidate, changed her vote Monday to Bolton. She joined Mayor Kim Carr, Councilman Dan Kalmick and Councilwoman Natalie Moser in backing the attorney.

"A local business leader shared with me recently that [Bolton] is someone that doesn't rush to judgment," Delgleize said during a speech announcing her vote. "She makes well-researched,

Driver arrested after hit-and-run on PCH kills 1 pedestrian, critically injures another

BY SARA CARDINE

Huntington Beach police have arrested a 26-year-old Victorville woman they believe killed one pedestrian and critically injured another Saturday night in a hit-and-run collision on Pacific Coast Highway, officials reported.

Chillandra Dalanalea Bell was driving a Nissan Altima northbound on Coast Highway at 8 p.m. when she reportedly ran a red light at Newland Street and struck a man and a woman in a crosswalk, according to a police department release issued Monday.

Witness accounts and video surveillance footage indicate that following the collision, Bell continued driving before stopping a short distance away and abandoning the vehicle along with a female passenger inside the Al-tima. Police reported the pair entered a white sedan waiting nearby and fled.

First responders arrived on scene and pronounced one of the pedestrians, DeAnna Stuve, a 48-year-old school teacher from Hemet, dead. Fredrick Stuve, 50, of Hemet was found to have sustained serious injuries and was transported to a nearby hospital where he was listed Monday in critical condition, according to police.

While police could not immediately confirm the relationship of the two victims, an online search indicates the pair were a couple and that DeAnna Stuve worked as a teacher at an elementary school in the Hemet Unified School District.

With the assistance of multiple witnesses, officers traced the Governor's Cup youth match racing regatta returns despite challenges from COVID-19

BY ANDREW TURNER

The 54th annual Governor's Cup International Youth Match Racing Championship got underway on Tuesday afternoon off the coast of Newport Beach, marking a long-awaited return for sailing fans.

Although the regatta is back after being shelved due to the coronavirus last year, the pandemic continued to pose a very real threat to the event.

Those challenges included the inability for some of the invitees to get to the regatta and back to their homelands in a timely manner, resulting in a Governor's Cup that features teams exclusively from the United States and Europe.

A group of 10 teams will vie for the chalice of champions that is the Governor's Cup. In a new wrinkle this year, there will be a second trophy awarded.

Either the Americans or the international fleet (made up of teams from Denmark, France and Sweden) will be awarded the Lew Beery Continents Cup, regatta officials announced at the Governor's Cup banquet Monday night at the host Balboa Yacht Club.

Andy Rose, chairman of the steering committee for the Governor's Cup, said he was finally able to breathe a sigh of relief when all 10 teams showed up.

"All the teams and the umpires had to be tested [for the coronavirus]," Rose said in a phone interview on Tuesday. "We were very pleased to see that all were negative, which was great. Most of them had been vaccinated, in any event, but that was great news, so everyone is out there on the water right now, which is great."

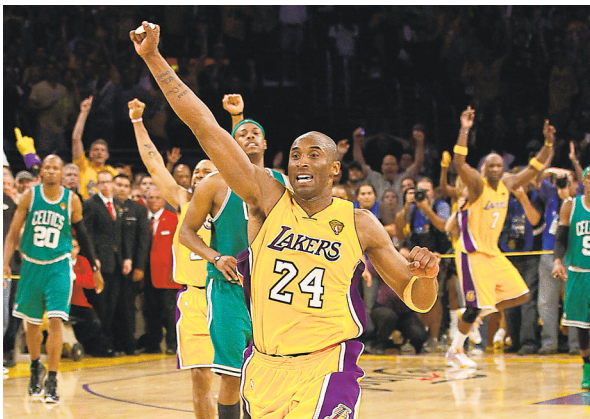

Rose also gave credit to Catherine Shanahan, a youth racing

KOBE BRYANT celebrates the Lakers' Game 7 victory over the Boston Celtics in the 2010 NBA Finals at Staples Center.

Steel seeks to honor Kobe Bryant

BY CITY NEWS SERVICE

Rep. Michelle Steel (R-Seal Beach) announced Tuesday she has introduced a congressional resolution to designate Aug. 24, 2021, as “Kobe Bryant Day” to honor the late Lakers star, who died in a helicopter crash on Jan. 26, 2020.

“Kobe Bryant used his platform to inspire millions and help kids around the world achieve success and strive for greatness. On August 24 we should remember Kobe, celebrate his life and encourage the next generation to dream big just like Kobe did,” Steel said.

Bryant lived in Orange County, within the 48th Congressional District represented by Steel. The date of Aug. 24 was chosen to represent the two uniform numbers Bryant wore with the Lakers, 8 and 24.

Last year, Steel led a successful effort to pass a similar Aug. 24 resolution locally when she was chair of the Orange County Board of Supervisors.

Her congressional resolution cites the work Bryant did in the community in addition to his athletic accomplishments, including: the Bryant Family Foundation, founded by Kobe and his wife Vanessa “with a mission of helping young people in need, encouraging the development of physical and social skills through sports and assisting the homeless; the Black Mamba Sports Academy, founded to connect aspiring athletes with experts to help them achieve their goals, and the Mamba and Mambacita Foundation, which was founded through the vision and loving memory of Kobe, and Gianna Bryant continues this legacy with a mission to create positive impact for underserved athletes and young women in sports.”

Bryant’s career was not without controversy. He was accused of raping a 19-year-old hotel clerk in Edwards, Colo., on June 30, 2003. Prosecutors charged him with one count of felony assault but later dropped the case after the alleged victim declined to testify.

The woman initiated a civil suit against Bryant, which was eventually settled out of court in March 2005.

Barbara Dapper Travers

June 4, 1937 - July 14, 2021

Barbara “Barbie” Dapper Travers, 84, passed away peacefully at her Laguna Beach home due to complications of a stroke, surrounded by her family and loved ones. Fortunately, in the days leading up to her passing, she was able to spend time with her children and many of her grandchildren, sharing memories and many laughs.

Barbie was born at Wilshire Hospital, Los Angeles, in 1937, daughter of Jane Ann and Vernon Dapper. Barbie grew up in Glendale and La Canada Flintridge and graduated from John Muir High School. She then attended UCLA, was a song leader there, and met many of her lifelong friends and future husband, Gary Davidson. They moved to Laguna Beach in the mid 1960’s.

Barbie married David Hirschler in 1975 and gained 4 daughters - a very ‘Brady Bunch’ situation with her 4 children. After David’s passing in 2007, Barbie married Robert Travers, a friend from junior high school. They spent the next 14 years between Napa and Laguna Beach.

Barbie was very active in her local community and with local charities, such as The Adoption Guild. Barbie loved the beach, entertaining family and friends and traveling, especially to the south of France, Italy and Hawaii.

Barbie is survived by her spouse, Bob, her brothers, Brian and David Dapper, her children, Eric Davidson(Joanie), Peter Davidson(Angela), Jana Day(Dan) and Katie Halperin(Glenn) and 10 grandchildren - Danielle Duley and Joanie Davidson, Taylor, Nicole and Gary Davidson, Eliza and Danny Day and Holly, Harrison and Lucy Halperin.

Body found in lake at Mile Square Park identified as Anaheim man, 57

BY SARA CARDINE

Orange County Sheriff’s Department officials on Monday released the name of a man whose body was discovered in a lake at Mile Square Park in Fountain Valley last week and indicated foul play did not likely play a role in the man’s death.

Spokeswoman Carrie Braun confirmed the coroner’s office identified the individual found Friday as Juan Carlos Aleman Perez, 57, of Anaheim.

The department’s Homicide Detail closed the lake to the visiting public the day the man’s body was discovered, as units combed the shoreline in search of clues or evidence that might identify the decedent.

Aleman Perez’s body was reportedly found sometime before 10:45 a.m. Friday by parkgoers riding a swan boat on the lake, a spokesman said from the scene.

Braun said although investigators remained lake-side several hours into the evening before ending their search, no evidence or identifying materials were discovered.

Officials are still waiting for final word from the coroner’s office to determine whether to conclude their investigation.

“Based on information we have from the family ... our investigators don’t believe it’s something suspicious,” she said.

“But if the autopsy shows us something different, then that will lead the investigation in a different way.”

The autopsy, scheduled for sometime this week, may also help authorities understand when Aleman Perez may have died and how long he may have been in the water before his body was discovered.

A YOUNGSTER walks past rows of “black-eyed Susans” along on the Sakioka family fields in Costa Mesa.

HANA

It’s also currently abloom with zinnias, snapdragons and black-eyed Susans in addition to sunflowers, but Flores said that he feels sunflowers are the biggest draw for visitors.

“So many people show up with different clothes that have sunflowers — shirts, skirts, tattoos,” Flores said, laughing.

“I think it’s a 50-50 split between people wanting to cut flowers and take pictures for social media [visiting],” Flores said. “There are times where we have those same people come back to the front and want to pick their own flowers too. It’s been good feedback.”

Mission Viejo residents Carolyn Coleman and her daughter Alyssa were visiting the field on Friday after Coleman heard about it through Instagram. Coleman said they were looking for sunflowers, which the two said were their favorites.

“We did this when the kids were younger at Tanaka Farms for the vegetable garden and the strawberries. It’s such a great experience for the kids to see [food] in the ground and know where they come from and be able to pick them,” Coleman said.

Alyssa said she thought it was great that there was an open farm around Orange County, which is mostly suburban.

Los Angeles resident Nancy Tran and her friend, An Pham, who lives in Garden Grove, agreed. Pham said she knew about the field through Tanaka Farms in Irvine, which she frequented.

“I was born and raised here in Orange County. Especially toward the Irvine-Costa Mesa border, there’s a lot of cities and corporate buildings like that. I think it’s a refreshing kind of break in between all the city life to have the flower field,” Pham said.

Tran said that it was a nice change in scenery, adding that she felt that there wasn’t enough space for anything similar like Hana Field or Tanaka Farms in Los Angeles and it was different.

Hana Field operates only on weekends, beginning Fridays at around 3 p.m. with a general admission fee of $5.

That doesn’t include flower picking, which will require interested parties to bring their own cutting tools and $20 for a souvenir vase that holds up to 15 blooms.

The rest of the week, Flores is watering and maintaining the fields with the assistance of laborers that switch between the main farm in Irvine and Hana Field.

The team recently planted an acre of pumpkins for the upcoming fall. Tanaka said people should also expect more sunflowers and some orange flowers.

The hope is to be able to have a ‘u-pick’ pumpkin patch up for Halloween, though Eileen Sagara, a spokeswoman and special events coordinator for Tanaka Farms, said they aren’t sure yet which activities will be available when Halloween rolls around.

The field manager Flores said he basically grew up on Tanaka Farms and that his father, Rocky, brought him to help with the farm work when he was 13 because he was hanging out with the wrong crowds.

Because of that, he said he felt that a lot of the novelties of a ‘u-pick’ were lost on him — someone who regularly saw the birds, bees and insects naturally drawn to flowers and crops.

But, he said he was glad to be able to provide the opportunity for people to see what he saw as a “privilege” of a childhood and job now as a field manager.

“It’s all about the experience. It’s about going in there [to Hana Field] and seeing not just the good flowers, but the bad flowers and being able to pick the ones you like and not getting them pre-cut already,” Flores said.

“I think it opens up a good gateway for people to come out and being able to see how stuff grows.”

measured decisions, and I believe she will be a complement to our City Council by bringing expertise to the leadership and business knowledge for these reasons.”

Councilmen Erik Peterson and Mike Posey cast the two dissenting votes. Posey made a substitute motion calling for a special election, but it failed 4-2.

Bolton, a mother of two who has served on the city’s Human Relations Task Force, was sworn in following the recess.

“It means a lot,” Bolton said in an interview following her appointment.

“I really appreciate the confidence that the folks in the city have expressed in me. I want to do them proud, and ... I think that this is a unique time for us and for the council. I wanted to offer up the passion and care that I have for the community, and the experience and skill, to help us navigate the matters that are really important right now that we need to be working on.”

Bolton specified homelessness, affordable housing and public safety as key issues the city faces.

Bolton is believed to be the first Black City Council member in Huntington Beach history. The city is just 1% Black demographically and has a history checkered with white supremacy.

“It demonstrates the community being accepting of people, regardless of what they look like, regardless of skin color,” Bolton said. “So, it means a lot to me.”

The scene inside the chambers after the vote appointing Bolton was chaotic, with supporters who largely supported Gracey Van Der Mark yelling “Recall” at the City Council members as the session went into recess.

Van Der Mark, who finished fourth in last November’s election that got Ortiz, Kalmick and Moser onto the dais, had dozens of supporters at Monday’s meeting. They asked the City Council to “honor the vote” and appoint Van Der Mark, or go the special election route at a cost estimated at $1 million.

Instead, the council went with Bolton, who attended the meeting with her husband John.

Bell was arrested Monday on suspicion of vehicular manslaughter with gross negligence and hit-and-run resulting in injury, in addition to other charges. It is unclear whether drugs or alcohol may have played a role in the incident.

An online prison inmate locator maintained by the Sheriff’s Department showed Bell, who works as a security guard, was being held at the county’s Intake Release Center for women on $100,000 bail. She is scheduled to appear Tuesday in Central Jail Court.

The identity of the driver of the white getaway vehicle was still being investigated Monday by the department’s Multidisciplinary Accident Investigation

Local teams claim 3 platinum division gold medals at USA Junior Olympics in Irvine

BY MATT SZABO

The Costa Mesa Aquatics Club had won gold medals at the USA Water Polo Junior Olympics before — but never in the top division.

That changed Sunday. Costa Mesa Aquatics Club stormed back to claim a 10-6 victory over Bay Area-based Sharks for the Junior Olympics 12-and-under mixed platinum division title match at Woollett Aquatics Center in Irvine.

They were one of three local divisions to earn platinum division titles in Session Two of the tournament, joining Newport's 12-and-under girls and Vanguard's 14-and-under girls.

"A lot of these kids have been playing together for four or five years, and it's just been building toward this moment," CMAC coach Olivia Schwartz said. "We've just been working with Splashball and 10U, putting all of their years of hard work together. That's what got them to this point here ... it's amazing."

In its historic win, CMAC had to rally from a 5-2 first-half deficit. But the local club was able to do so, led by division MVP Kamryn Anderson. One of six girls on the mixed-gender team, Anderson had two goals, seven steals and four assists in the final.

Madison Mack led CMAC with three goals, while Jay Larson and Sadira Anavim had two goals each. Dominic Diaz also scored for the winners, who also got contributions from Evan "They're always timid out the gate," Schwartz said. "Usually, once they shake off those nerves, we're on fire."

Newport girls claim 12U crown: The Newport Water Polo Club 12-and-under girls also rallied for a platinum division title Sunday, winning 7-4 over 680 Drivers of the Bay Area.

Newport trailed 2-1 at halftime and 3-2 after three quarters, but exploded for five goals in the fourth quarter for the victory.

Newport's Gabby Alexson had three goals in the final for MVP honors. Sadie Ricks scored twice while Addison Ting and Valery Verdugo scored one goal each.

Goalkeeper Terra Sage Lindberg made seven saves for Newport. Keira Bethell, Caroline Daniel, Sutton Lohman, Campbell Pence, Charmae Price, Mary White and Julia Winkelmann also contributed.

"It felt amazing," Alexson said. "If it wasn't for our teamwork, we wouldn't have won ... We knew this was our last game as a team together, so we really pushed hard."

Former Corona del Mar High School girls' coach Kevin Ricks led the Newport girls to victory.

Vanguard 14U girls win title: The Vanguard Aquatics 14-and-under team also earned a title, in exciting fashion.

events manager for U.S. Sailing, for helping to secure national interest exemptions for the European squads to compete.

“They say it takes a village,” regatta chair Christine Robertson Gribben said in thanking those that helped to put on the event. “Well, I say it takes a village and the village next door.”

The Governor’s Cup has often included teams from Australia, New Zealand and Great Britain, but that will not be the case on this occasion.

Recent alumni of the regatta from each of those nations were shown during a presentation to guests at the banquet. Will Boulden of Australia and Matt Whitfield of Great Britain contributed videos for the dinner, and three-time Governor’s Cup runner-up Leonard Takahashi of New Zealand also appeared in pictures.

The local sailing community is well represented. David Wood, competing in his fourth Governor’s Cup, and Jeffrey Petersen, are both from Balboa Yacht Club, and they used to sail together.

“We use each other to train and develop, and the only thing that David and I want to do is to represent Balboa Yacht Club, so it’s awesome that we both have the opportunity to do that,” Petersen said. “We have the opportunity to train together and work together and push both of our skill levels higher than the competition, so we can have a great showing.”

Newport Harbor Yacht Club’s Morgan Pinckney, 16, makes his Governor’s Cup debut and is the youngest skipper in the fleet. His boat will sport the only four-person crew with Will Glasson, Marbella Marlo and Jack Flores joining him.

Cohesion is of vital importance, especially on a crowded boat.

“I think we certainly will [have teamwork], especially sailing with four, we’ll have an extra set of hands that other teams won’t have, and today was our first day actually all together on the boat,” Flores said at the banquet. “It went quite well, the cohesion. We’re all very mature sailors, I think, and I don’t see that being an issue.”

When asked if it was time for him to experience a breakthrough at the Governor’s Cup, Wood responded, “Why couldn’t it be?”

Max Mayol, the main trimmer for Wood’s crew, said that kids watch the event and wait for their moment to compete. He added that the team is ready to seize the moment.

“At one point, we were those kids, and it’s a special place to be, so we’re excited,” Mayol said.

France’s Thimoté Polet was considered one of the favorites entering the regatta. “If we win, it’s better training for the next event, the Youth [Match Racing World Championship],” Polet said. “It’s very important.”

The Youth Match Racing World Championship will also be hosted by Balboa Yacht Club.

Another twist to the Governor’s Cup this year is the path to qualifying for the semifinals. The top two finishers in the double round robin will get the first two spots in the semifinals. If wind conditions permit, regatta officials also plan to have a subsequent round robin with the remaining eight contenders to decide the other two semifinalists.

“It’s blowing today, so as long as we don’t have breakdowns, they’ll get in a lot of races today, and it’s supposed to continue like this for at least a day or so,” Rose said. “It’s a way to provide a lot more racing, and that’s what these sailors came for.”

Petersen was undefeated through six rounds on the first day of action, but he had yet to face Denmark’s Emil Kjaer, who had won all five of his reported matches as of 5:30 p.m. on Tuesday.

American Porter Kavle had posted a first-day record of 5-2 as of this writing.

Vanguard beat North Irvine 10-7 in a penalty shootout, after the teams were tied 7-7 through regulation.

Vanguard featured four girls — Kara Carver, Presley Jones, goalkeeper Siena Jumani and Estelle Karaba — who are incoming freshmen at Laguna Beach High School. Carver said it was the fourth Junior Olympics title for her and Jumani, while Jones won her fifth crown.

They loomed large in the final. Carver scored three goals, including once in the shootout, and Jones scored once. Jumani blocked three penalty shots, including the first two of the shootout.

“We’ve been practicing for so long with each other, this team’s like family,” Carver said. “It’s just been a really crazy year, and we’ve made the most out of it.”

Allison Cohen of Vanguard earned MVP honors.

Newport Beach 18Us, SET 16Us fall in final: The Newport Beach Water Polo Club 18-and-under girls lost to SOCAL Black 8-7 in a hotly contested platinum division gold-medal match on Sunday.

It was an impressive showing for Newport Beach, which played entirely with players from coach Ross Sinclair’s Newport Harbor High School girls’ water polo program. The only graduate on the team was center Olivia Giolas, headed to USC.

“I’m so proud of all of our girls,” Giolas said. “It’s not an easy feat to be able to come this far and do this well. We all played together as a team. We represented Newport the best way we could, and I am so proud of how we finished.”

Giolas and Alex Love each scored twice for Newport in the title match, while Taylor Smith, Morgan Netherton and Avery Montiel added one goal each. Goalkeeper Anna Reed made six saves.

Local players on SOCAL included CdM graduate Kaity Greenwald and Newport Beach resident Claire Eusey, who scored a goal in the final.

In the 16U title match, SET fell 10-6 to Santa Barbara 805. SET featured seven incoming sophomores and juniors from the Laguna Beach girls’ water polo program, including starting goalkeeper Natasha Denny. Laguna Beach’s Myha Pinto and CdM’s Mia Bernhoit each scored for SET in the final.

IGARASHI

Each surfer’s top two rides were counted.

Ferreira saw his board snap in half during the opening minutes of the heat, but he landed two solid waves.

Igarashi rode 14 waves but was unable to get a big enough score to threaten.

Igarashi, 23, is used to the big stage. He won the U.S. Open of Surfing title back-to-back years on his home break, in 2017 and 2018 at the south side of the Huntington Beach Pier.

At his first Olympics, Igarashi also showed a flair for the dramatic. He unleashed a 9.33 ride in the final minutes of his semifinal heat to beat two-time world champion Gabriel Medina of Brazil 17.00-16.76.

“The ride was probably about seven seconds long, but it felt like 70 minutes long,” Igarashi told the New York Times after the heat.

“I felt every single little moment. I felt my heartbeat, I felt my hair in the wind, I felt being in the air. And I had thoughts while I was in the air. It was kind of surreal, but as soon as I landed it I knew it was one of the biggest moments of my career.”

Igarashi also dispatched Kohole Andino of San Clemente 12.60-11.00 in the quarterfinals.
