Huntington Beach has wrapped a police vehicle and fire truck light blue this month, in support of Prostate Cancer Awareness Month.

Prostate cancer affects about one in eight men in their lifetime. The message to go get checked out hits close to home for Huntington Beach Mayor Pro Tem Pat Burns.

Burns was diagnosed with prostate cancer in 2020, at the age of 58. He said he went to a doctor at Hoag, who's now at City of Hope, and ended up getting his prostate removed.

"What was important to me was that I found it, and I dealt with it," Burns said. "Really, what came of it was that I felt that others ought to know about it. Guys shouldn't be afraid. It's just part of life, we have to deal with it."

Huntington Beach is raising awareness and encouraging early detection with the wrapped vehicles, which were showcased in a press conference Thursday at the Gothard Fire Station.

Newport Beach council endorses Prop. 36: harsher penalties for theft and drug crimes

BY ERIC LICAS

The Newport Beach City Council adopted a resolution at its meeting on Tuesday in support of Proposition 36, a measure on the November ballot that purports to tackle homelessness and drug addiction by imposing harsher penalties against people convicted of retail theft or trafficking fentanyl.

The resolution backing the proposition was recommended by Mayor Will O'Neill and Councilman Erik Weigand. Its passage came packaged with the meeting's consent calendar and was unanimously approved without comment from members of council or the public.

Newport Beach is the latest among a handful of communities that have formally come out in support of the proposition. Huntington Beach's City Council adopted a similar resolution in August. It has also been endorsed by the California Sheriff's Assn., the California Republican Party and the California District Attorneys Assn., an organization whose members are mostly pros-

County shuts down deal with Be Well OC

Officials at mental health care provider say they were in the process of increasing staff when decision was announced.

BY ERIC LICAS

The Orange County Health Care Agency ended its arrangement with the nonprofit running the Mental Health and Wellness campus in Orange in late August after an audit found deficiencies in how billing and training were handled.

But representatives for the treatment provider say many of this issues were fixed and claim they were blindsided by the decision to pull their funding.

Mind OC conducts outreach to the homeless community and operates various mental health and substance abuse treatment programs throughout Orange County under the name Be Well OC. Since 2021, it has been running the Mental Health and Welness Campus in partnership with the Orange County Health Care Agency.

The Orange County Board of Supervisors committed $16.6 million for the development of the Orange campus. Additional investments came from the County's Medical Provider CalOptima and local hospitals whose officials anticipated that the facility would alleviate caseloads in their ERs.

An audit conducted in July cited issues with how staff training, credentials and quality management were being tracked at the Orange campus, according to documentation obtained by LAist via public records requests. It also raised concern over the potential for inaccuracies in billing for services.

"It had nothing to do with clinical care," Mind OC chief executive

Costa Mesa's ART venture to bring art-making to the masses

BY SARA CARDINE

Much more than an art show, Costa Mesa's annual ARTventure lets locals get up close and personal with various media, encouraging them to get their hands dirty — and their minds elevated — by actively engaging in the creative process.

What began in 2015 as a three-day juried exhibition of work from visual artists throughout Southern California has since expanded into a weeklong celebration kicked off by a community arts day filled with hands-on activities involving ceramics, painting, music, dance and more.

This year's event begins Saturday with the exhibition's openPERFORM during Costa Mesa's 2023 ARTventure event.

Harper Price has been known as a standout utility player during her time with the Newport Harbor High girls' water polo team.

Sometimes, that means doing the little things that are needed to win.

Her play is now taking on a big trip, halfway around the world.

Price has been named to the U.S. women's water polo Youth National Team roster for the 2024 World Aquatics U18 Championships, which start Sunday in Chengdu, China. Huntington Beach native and Edison High graduate Alys Moore (Williams), a 2020 Olympic gold medalist who recently retired from international competition, will be the Youth National Team head coach for the tournament. Four-time Olympic gold medalist and former CdM girls' coach Melissa Seidemann is an assistant, while former Newport Harbor standout

DEAL

Phillip Franks told the Daily Pilot Thursday. "It was the county monitoring our ability to do county level contract monitoring."

The majority of the complaints in the audit specifically targeted crisis support programs at the campus like the crisis stabilization unit and emergency hotline. Until recently, those had been contracted to Exodus Recovery Inc., unlike the addiction and mental health treatment programs handled directly by Be Well.

Auditors found that calls would sometimes go unanswered while Exodus was running the hotline. Franks said the contractor also wasn't doing a good job of referring people who called in to services, which meant it wasn't helping as many people as it could have been.

Exodus announced plans to stop contracting for the county in March, and so Be Well stepped in to take over for the crisis support services it had been handling, Franks said. He said the nonprofit invested heavily into this effort, including restaffing the hotline with registered nurses available 24/7. He added that since then, the call center has been fielding 80 to 90 calls each day, and practically all of the programs at the Mental Health and Wellness campus are full with patients.

Franks said access to care at the campus improved dramatically after Be Well took over for Exodus. That's why they were shocked when OCHCA told them it would be ending its arrangement with the non-profit on Aug. 29.

"We had been planning to take on those services, hiring up our staff ..." Franks said. "It came as a complete and total surprise a couple Thursdays ago when we were given a termination notice."

Around 100 staff at Be Well will have to be laid off as a result, Franks said.

REPRESENTATIVES FOR the treatment provider Mind OC say many of this issues identified in an audit were fixed and claim they were blindsided by the Orange County Health Care Agency's decision to pull their funding. Above, a member of Be Well OC's Mobile Crisis Response Team performs outreach to people living in Huntington Beach.

"This decision is based on an ever-evolving public, private partnership model," according to a joint statement from the OCHCA and Mind OC. "The HCA will manage the landscape of Medicaid programs at the site and partner with Exodus Recovery Inc. and HealthRight 360 to ensure continued high-quality psychiatric crisis and substance-use disorder services."

Franks said he was concerned about Exodus stepping back into the picture, given his claim that many of the issues raised in the audit related to that contractor's actions.

Meanwhile, OCHCA is still working with Be Well to open a second Mental Health and Wellness Campus at Great Park in Irvine. That deal has not been affected by developments at the Orange campus, Franks said.

The termination of Be Well's involvement at the Orange campus came two days after the Newport Beach City Council decided to end the city's $2.1-million contract with the non-profit to run a street health program. Council members and residents offering public comments said they didn't feel the program had achieved enough "street exits," a term for moving homeless people into housing

Franks explained that the nonprofit was focused on earning people's trust and gradually encouraging them to get the support they needed. Unlike police, Be Well's caseworkers don't have the authority to force people out of encampments and out of public sight

Ex-soccer coach pleads guilty to child porn charge

BY CITY NEWS SERVICE

A Huntington Beach man who served as a referee and coach in the American Youth Soccer Organization pleaded guilty Wednesday to a federal charge, admitting that he hid a camera in a location where he knew an underage girl in his care would disrobe and persuaded a second child in a foreign country to send him nude photos of herself.

Mark Phillip Oster, 64, entered his plea in Los Angeles federal court to a single count of production of child pornography. Sentencing was set for Nov. 25, at which time he faces between 15 and 30 years behind bars, according to the U.S. Attorney's Office.

In his plea agreement, Oster admitted posting images of child pornography to a website on the dark web dedicated to sharing images and videos of child pornography and to the discussion of child sexual

On the site, he shared his knowledge of how child pornography is produced in the Philippines and explained how sexual exploitation of children operates in Southeast Asia, the Attorney's Office U.S.

Oster was also found to have shared child pornography on Facebook and Skype and stored child pornography in his Google Photos, a court document states.

He also produced child pornography involving an underage victim who was within his "care, custody, and control" at the times of the offenses, according to his plea agreement.

Specifically, on hard drives seized by the FBI from his home in March and August 2021, he possessed numerous images of child pornography he produced with the girl, who was younger than 12 years old at the time, federal prosecutors said.

In addition, throughout 2020 and continuing until July 2021, Oster produced child pornography by "enticing, persuading, and directing" a second child, who was about 13 years old and lived outside the U.S., to take pictures of herself and transmit them to the defendant, according to federal prosecutors.

Oster admitted to also having "persuaded and enticed the second victim's mother to take pictures of her daughter's body. In exchange for the pictures, Oster sent money and gifts to the child and her mother. The girl was "vulnerable on account of her poverty," according to the U.S. Attorney's Office.

Oster was associated with AYSO from 2015 through 2021. He was named in a four-count federal criminal indictment filed in August 2021, charging him with two counts of producing child pornography, one count of distributing child pornography and one count of possessing child pornography.

Coyote that bit 11-yearold put down

BY ERIC LICAS

A covote bit an 11year-old boy at the Pelican Hill Golf Club's course earlier month and was eventually euthanized by state officials.

The boy was walking with an older sibling on Sept. 1 when they came across a pack of coyotes, according to Newport Beach Police Sgt. Steve Oberon. They ran, and one of the animals chased them and managed to leave a minor bite wound on the back of the boy's leg before a bystander helped scare the coyote away.

Animal Control Officers were notified at about 5:30 that evening, Oberon said. They then worked with California Department of Fish and Wildlife officials to find the covote.

Wildlife that have attacked people are considered too much of a threat to be allowed to remain near populated areas, and relocating coyotes is ineffective because they are a territorial species that will return to their chosen habitat, according to the Humane Society. Those that exhibit violence toward humans are typically euthanized.

DNA taken from the 11-year-old's wound matched samples from the coyote trapped by officials, Oberon said. CDFW game wardens confirmed that it had been killed on Sept. 4.

sues, whether they're criminal in nature or medical in nature," Parra said. "We want to be there for you."

Prostate cancer is the most common cancer and second-leading cause of cancer death among men, according to the National Cancer Institute. The American Cancer Society recommends discussing screening with your doctor at age 50 for men who are at average risk of prostate cancer and expected to live at least 10 more years.

However, the organization recommends having the discussion at age 45 for men at high risk, including Black men and men who have a father or brother who was diagnosed with prostate cancer at an early age. For men at even higher risk — those with more than one first-degree relative who had prostate cancer at an early age discussion about screening is recommended at age 40.

Prostate cancer often has no symptoms in its early stages, making awareness critical.

Burns was blunt when asked his message to men who may be hesitant to get checked.

"You're a fool if you think you can't get it or you don't have to get checked," he said. "You're playing with fire. It's nothing to be embarrassed about, it's nothing to be afraid of."

After the city completed renovations in and around Lions Park in 2021, the new community center provided the perfect venue for housing the pieces for a longer period.

"We've really activated it, and we're getting bigger and bigger every year," Thomas said Wednesday. "It's really like three events, by the time you do the exhibit and the opening and closing days."

More than 325 pieces of visual art, including 23 works submitted by area youth, will continue to remain on display on Sunday, from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. and then Monday through Friday, from 1 to 7 p.m. ARTventure officially culminates in a Sept. 21 awards ceremony for featured artists at the Orange County Museum of Art, from 6 to 9 p.m.

years. Opponents, including the California Democratic Party, the League of Women Voters and California Attorneys for Criminal Justice (made up of mostly defense attorneys), along with California's Legislative Analyst's Office, say it would drastically increase the state's prison population and cost taxpayers hundreds of millions of dollars annually.

The measure would alter and reverse portions of Proposition 47, a set of laws passed in 2014 designed to alleviate overcrowding in prisons by reducing some nonviolent felonies to misdemeanors. Supporters of Proposition 36 claim that softening penalties for certain crimes 10 years ago encouraged people to commit them more often.

Proponents of the ballot initiative say it would tackle retail theft by essentially re-instating a "third strike" rule for the crime, meaning anyone with two prior convictions for stealing would be eligible for felony charges in subsequent cases regardless of the value of goods taken. Previously, under Proposition 47, all theft cases valued under $950 were classified as misdemeanors.

Thieves in a "smash-andgrab" heist at a jewelry store in Newport Beach ran off with about $250,000 in merchandise last September. In July, a woman was killed after she and her husband became the victims of a robbery at Fashion Island.

who either possess firearms or sell an illicit substance that winds up injuring someone. It also specifically categorizes fentanyl as a hard drug and would require people found guilty of selling it to be warned that they could be charged with murder if their merchandise kills a person.

The ballot measure would also create a new class of offenses called treatment-mandated felonies. This would make people with two prior convictions for the possession or hard drugs illegible for a felony charge upon future arrests. People convicted a third time would be given the option to enter addiction and mental health treatment program to avoid jail time.

Although the ballot initiative features language calling for more treatment and support services for those dealing with addiction or mental health conditions, it does not contain provisions outlining how those would be funded. Those campaigning against Proposition 36 claim it would actually make it harder to access treatment because it would divert funds away from state programs in order to pay for an increased workload in California's court and prison systems.

By comparison, the passage of Proposition 47 came packaged with the establishment of the Safe Neighborhoods and Schools Fund. That program repurposed the money the state saved as a result of reducing the prison population and prosecutor caseloads to pay for mental health services, substance use disorder treatment and diversion programs for those in the criminal justice system.

Gov. Gavin Newsom and other Democratic lawmakers proposed an alternative measure to compete with Proposition 36, but that effort lost steam shortly after it was announced.
