Harrington makes birdie putt to win Hoag Classic

BY MATT SZABO

Professional golfer Padraig Harrington has gained quite a following on YouTube with his "Paddy's Golf Tips."

While fundamentals are undoubtedly important for any golfer, the mental fortitude to overcome two double-bogeys in the final round of a tournament? That doesn't necessarily come included.

Harrington did it Sunday at Newport Beach Country Club. He came into the final round ahead by a stroke, and he came out of it in the same position.

The Irishman holed an 8-foot birdie putt on No. 18 to win his first Hoag Classic in windy conditions

Harrington, 52, who won his seventh PGA Tour Champions event overall, finished at 14 under par. That was a stroke better than first-round leader Thongchai Jaidee of Thailand, with Miguel Angel Jimenez of Spain in third place at 12 under par.

Stephen Ames finished fourth at 11 under, with Jerry Kelly and KJ Choi tied for fifth at 10 under.

"If you said to me before going out there that I was going to make two double-bogeys, I would be thinking, 'There's no way I'm winning today,'" Harrington admitted. "[But] I think one of my best traits in golf is

Gurran fills in as search for city manager continues in Laguna

BY ANDREW TURNER

Laguna Beach will experience more reorganization of city leadership, as interim City Manager Sean Joyce participated in his final regular meeting of the City Council on Tuesday.

Joyce, who retired as the city manager of Irvine in 2018, was brought in to fill the role on Sept. 7. The hire took place following the exit of former City Manager Shohreh Dupuis, who reached a separation agreement with the city on Aug. 24.

Recruitment to find the next permanent city manager in Laguna Beach is still on-"The City Council has appointed Gavin Curran, the assistant city manager, to serve as the acting city manager following the interim city manager's departure this Friday, when he turns into a pumpkin," City Atty. Megan Garibaldi said when she reported out of the closed session proceedings.

Joyce received a round of applause, and a

Planners build on housing vision

Costa Mesa seeks public input on plans to turn Fairview Development Center into a 'unique' future neighborhood.

A network of bike trails crisscrossing wide open spaces, community-sized businesses within walking distance of stacked flats or townhomes occupied by residents with modest incomes — it sounds like the stuff of fantasy, but Costa Mesa hopes to give it a

The city has in recent months been engaging locals in a visioning process for redeveloping a 100-acre portion of the Fairview Developmental Center into at least 2,300 units of housing, 40% of which will be for occupants currently earning less than $114,800 as a family of four.

A bulk of the property is being dispossessed by the state, which has earmarked a 15-acre portion the establishment of a regional Emergency Operations Center, but will soon begin looking for a master developer to purchase the remainder of the property and implement a building program in accordance with guidelines to be

'Exciting' change at area hospitals

Now former Fountain Valley Regional Hospital is one of 4 community medical centers newly acquired by UCI Health.

BY MATT SZABO

Arriving to work at 7 a.m. Wednesday morning, Adrienne Feilden was unsure of exactly what to expect.

The acclaimed child life specialist at Fountain Valley Regional Hospital knew the sale of her community hospital to UCI Health had been finalized hours earlier, so she wasn't too surprised when she saw a huge "UCI Health" sign at the corner of Warner Avenue and Euclid Street.

The rebranding happened quickly. UCI Health has now officially purchased Fountain Valley and three other community hospitals — Lakewood Regional begin drafting a specific plan calling for the development of at least 2,300 units of housing on the former site of the state-owned Fairview Developmental Center.

O.C. families heed the call to hunt for beeping Easter eggs

COSTA MESA will later this year

drafted at the municipal level.

Residents have been invited to weigh in at multiple workshops, held in English, Spanish and via teleconference, since November, where talks have corralled comments about amenities, building types, parking, access and mobili-

Consultants from the Los Angeles-based Placeworks, Inc. on Monday updated the Costa Mesa Planning Commission on progress made so far, laying out a process during which the city plans to prepare a specific plan and environmental impact report necessary for the work to begin.

"Our goal right now is to create the vision and guiding principles, a working draft of these, to really help give us a north star and a guiding point as we start to pull the documents together," project manager Suzanne Schwab told commissioners.

A specific plan is a zoning document that sets limits, expectations and requirements for a particular area above and beyond the city's general plan. Once completed, the Fairview Developmental Center Specific Plan will guide developers into how the site and what's built on it should look, feel and operate.

working Consultants alongside city staff have been compiling wishes and worries conveyed by residents, and a vision is beginning to form, Schwab said. They're really in support of housing being a priority use but also see opportunities for civic and community services as well as open space and an opportunity for a new and unique perspective on mobility, transit and parking here," she said, listing childcare services, clinics, bike and pedestrian paths, sports fields and shade trees as expressed priorities.

A specific plan may also lay out what building scenarios the city would like to see on the site, such as single-family attached homes, multifamily apartments, townhouses with courtyards and retail or commercial uses mixed in.

Principal Placeworks Karen Gully explained that while the vision is up to Costa Mesa, it will have to be financially feasible for developers, who will ulti-mately be footing the bill for the work.

"Our overall goal as a consulting team here is to ensure we prepare a specific plan that is desirable to build, meaning you'll have multiple master developers wanting to come forward and build this, it works financially and it best addresses the vision of the community," Gully said.

Drafting of the specific plan and EIR are anticipated to begin later this year and will take about eight months. The public will be allowed to review the documents and can comment at hearings before the Planning Commission and City Council, likely in 2025. After that, the state will select a master developer, and the entitlement process will begin. Some on Monday urged Costa Mesa leaders to allow residents to more deeply engage in the planning process. Richard Huffman, a member of the citizens advocacy group Costa Mesa First, called the city's outreach process superficial and suggested an advisory committee led by an expert be formed, as was done when the city developed its Westside Specific Plan in 2000. "The Fairview Developmental Center deserves the same kind of attention to achieve a result that reflects the concerns of the residents," he said.

Planning Commission Chair Adam Ereth disagreed, saying, "It seems like it would just sandbag the process and keep us from moving forward in meeting our deadlines."

Co-chair Russell Toler said he was pleased to see in workshop attendees a willingness to consider a mix of walkable, car-free open space with high-density housing, the likes of which are more common in Europe than America.

"This is a big opportunity for us to push the envelope," he said, describing a vision of a greenbelt extending from Fairview Park and the Costa Mesa Country Club, adjacent to the 100-acre site, eastward toward Back Bay. "We should err on [the side of] being ambitious."

Ruck march draws attention to veteran suicides

BY LILLY NGUYEN

Carrying at least 22 pounds of gear on their backs to bring attention to the significant number of veterans who die by suicide every day, about 100 people participated in a ruck march Saturday from Huntington Beach to Newport Beach.

It was the first such event organized by American Legion Newport Harbor Post 291, according to post historian John Arganda.

"We're trying to bring veteran suicide awareness to the actual public," Arganda said in a recent interview. "That's part of the reason we [marched] from Huntington Beach to Newport Beach. As you know, it's one way to get people to see what we're doing, but it also lets people know who we are. We also were trying to bridge gaps between other organizations within the community, as well, because I feel that we should be working together," said Arganda.

That includes organizations like the Elks Lodge, Team Red, White and Blue and the Quick Reaction Foundation.

Arganda, who served in the U.S. Army, said the idea to organize the march came to him after other groups did similar events. He thought a local march would not only be a way to bring awareness to the problem but could also serve as a fundraiser for the post's charitable work.

Argand reported the march raised $2,156 Saturday for his organization's veteran emergency assistance fund, which helps more than 20 people a month. The entry fee to the march was $22.

"I don't think a lot of people realize [the problem of veteran suicide] is actually something to combat as much as possible because these guys have sacrificed for our country," said Arganda. "The 22 pounds is the weight of the 22 veterans a day we carry."

The statistic of 22 veterans dying by suicide daily was first reported in 2013, when the United States Department of Veterans Affairs released a study that covered reported suicides from 1999 to 2010. The number has improved somewhat since then, as a U.S. Department of Veteran Affairs 2023 report showed the suicide number dropped to 18 daily, but the average rate of suicides per day for veterans rose from 16.4 in 2001 to 17.5 in 2021.

Saturday's ruck march started at Huntington Beach Pier and ended at the American Legion Newport Harbor Post 291 — a distance of about 6.8 miles.

"As soon as we stepped off, it started raining a bit but everyone pushed on and persevered. People were having a blast," he said on Monday.

As part of the event, the group brought out a color guard and the national anthem was played. The Combat Veterans Motorcycle Assn. proceeded those on foot.

Medical Center, Alamitos Medical Center and Placentia-Linda Medical Center — and their associated outpatient locations from Texas-based Tenet Healthcare.

Officials said the total sale price was $975 million, in cash. The hospitals will now be known as UCI Health - Fountain Valley, UCI Health - Lakewood, UCI Health - Los Alamitos and UCI Health - Placentia Linda.

"It's an exciting day," Feilden said at a ribboncutting ceremony at the Fountain Valley campus on Wednesday morning. "I love that it feels very much like a family. I know all of the CEOs are saying that, but it really does feel like today we merged with a big family. We were already a big family, but now we're a bigger family."

UCI Health also operates UCI Medical Center in Orange, which has been listed among America's best hospitals by U.S. News & World Report for 23 straight years. Additionally, the academic health system is opening a new campus in Irvine; the first building, the Joe C. Wen and Family Center Advanced Care, launches next month.

Patients of the former Tenet hospitals and outpatient offices can continue receiving care as usual at their local facilities, UCI Health officials said.

The acquisition adds 858 inpatient beds to UCI Medical Center's total of 459 beds. In total, the five UCI Health facilities now have more than 12,000 coworkers, UCI Health President and CEO Chad Lefteris said at Wednesday's

He called the sale a historic moment for healthcare across Southern California.

"We are, and our communities are, stronger because we are now to-gether," Lefteris said. "Together, we will transform healthcare delivery in Southern California. We will serve as an example to the nation, as we lead the intersection of academic and community healthcare. Together we bring the power of the brightest minds, innovations, cutting-edge research with a deep understanding of patient relationships and service from local physicians who are ingrained in these

"Thank you for having me," Joyce said. "I appreciate it. I've enjoyed every day of it, and thanks to the staff for tolerating me, and thank you to the community for allowing me to be here for seven months and serve you. It's been compelling but a joy and just reinvigorating, as well."

In the aftermath of an apparent "Zoom bombing" incident during the City Council meeting on Feb. 13, Joyce made the call to have public testimony made in person or via email. A group of remote participants had used the online meeting platform to make offensive and hateful comments, leading to the decision to move on from audible public comment online. "Ît's been fun to work with him for seven months, and we got a lot done, a lot accomplished, and obviously from the reception there, I think a lot of people in the community appreciate your efforts," Councilman Bob Whalen said. "Thank you. Wish we could have stretched it out a little more."

Under state guidelines, Joyce was able to serve in the role for a maximum of 960 hours within the fiscal year. Joyce has also spent time as an interim city manager for Huntington Beach, San Clemente and South Pasadena. Before retiring, he served as city manager of Irvine, Sierra Madre and South Pasadena.

Laguna Beach had three city managers in four decades prior to the transitional period overseen by Joyce. Ken Frank held the top job from September 1979 to December 2010, followed by John Pietig until June 2021. Dupuis succeeded Pietig.

Also at Tuesday's meeting, the City Council weighed in on whether the campaign contribution limit should be adjusted to reflect the total change in the consumer price index.

Council members George Weiss and Whalen, both of whom are in the final year of their respective terms, recused themselves from the item.

The balance of the council voted unanimously to have an ordinance prepared that will adjust the campaign contribution limit amount from $440 to $520. Council members also directed the city clerk and city attorney to come back with an ordinance that would allow for automatic adjustment to the campaign contribution limit based on the consumer price index.

The hospital means a lot to Grandis, a 44-year resident of the city. He said his oldest son was born there 36 years ago. He also has a son who is autistic and nonverbal and has received treatment at the hospital.

"What an exciting day for Fountain Valley," said Grandis, who is on the hospital's governing board of directors. "On behalf of the city, we are just so excited about this.'

Former Huntington Beach Mayor Shirley Dettloff, the hospital's governing board chair, said the entire board was excited about the move, noting that the goal has always been for Fountain Valley to be one of the top hospitals in the state.

"It's not just a one-way street," she said. "UCI is getting one of the best staffs in the state of California. We have the best doctors, we have the best nurses, we have a staff that supports all of these medical services. We even have the best security guards."

Representatives from the offices from Rep. Michelle Steele and Assemblyman Tri Ta offered certificates to commemorate the occa-

One of the stars Wednesday was Carlie, the hospital's new therapy dog.

People like dogs, and they also like confetti. Tons of it, in the UC Irvine colors of blue and yellow, poured into the air after the ribbon-cutting.

'We are deeply committed to partnering with the local communities and physicians in those communities, by listening and learning," Lefteris said. "This journey is not one that will happen overnight - although some signs did change overnight, if you look around. I do ask for your patience. This is a lot, and we want to do it well, not just do it fast."

HIGH SCHOOL BASEBALL

H.B. uses consistent attack to beat Edison

BY MATT SZABO

There was a time earlier this season when Huntington Beach High baseball juniors Ethan Porter and Trent Grindlinger were both struggling at the plate.

"They were making jokes like, 'Hey, I'm hitting better than you now, you're hitting .160 and I'm hitting .161,'" Huntington Beach coach Benji Medure said. "But they're heating up. When the big guys go, our offense rolls."

This was the case as the Oilers' bats came alive in a Surf League game Tuesday at Edison.

Porter and Grindlinger combined to go six for six with a pair of walks as Huntington Beach pulled away for an 8-3 victory.

The Oilers, seeking their eighth straight league title, improved to 10-4 overall and 3-1 in league. Huntington Beach is ranked No. 5 in the CIF Southern Section Division 1 poll.

Porter, the leadoff hitter who's committed to Oregon State, was two for two with a double, two walks and three runs scored. Grindlinger, a Mississippi State commit, was just a home run short of the cycle, finishing four for four with two doubles, a triple and four runs batted in.

The Oilers have rebounded from back-to-back shutout losses to Marina and Fountain Valley on March 15 and 16, the latter game opening Surf League play, to record three league victories in a

"We kind of went through a tough spot," said Medure, who picked up his 400th career victory earlier this season. "I don't know if it was bad luck, I don't know what it was, but every time we hit a ball hard it was caught. I just don't think we were having the competitive at-bats that we're having now. We're seeing the ball better, and people are starting to settle into their roles."

Porter led off the game with a full-count double to center, and eventually came home on Grindlinger's two-out single.

Edison (8-9, 0-2), which was promoted back up to the Surf League after winning the Wave League last season, responded in the bottom of the frame. Mason Gerhardt led off with an infield single, and Gavin Johnson drew a walk. After Cody Kruis reached on a bunt — the throw to third for a force out was offline for an error Nathan Hunter smacked an RBI single to center.

But Huntington Beach senior starting pitcher Nathan Aceves earned two strikeouts and a foul out to get out of the jam.

"It just ran up his pitch count, and then by the third inning, his [velocity] was down," Medure said. "He went from 92 to 88. We could have helped him, played better defense behind him in the first, but I thought he was pretty effective.'

Aceves exited in the fourth inning, and by then the Oilers had a 4-2 lead. Freshman left-handed pitcher Tanner Brown picked up the win, improving to 3-0 for Huntington Beach after firing two shutout innings in relief.

Medure said Brown wasn't scared and called him a dart thrower. Grindlinger, who knows what it feels like to be a freshman on varsity, said he offers words of wisdom to this year's pair of ninth-graders on the team — his younger brother Jared Grindlinger and Brown.

"It's always a big moment," Grindlinger said. "You've got to be able to slow it down. You're there for a reason, you've got to have confidence in yourself. That's what I try to remind them every

Jayton Greer had a single and a pai r of RBIs for Huntington Beach, which scored in every inning except the fourth. The winners also received hits from Trevor Goldenetz, CJ Weinstein and Braedon Peterson-Cheek. Tony Martinez added two hits, including a double, and an RBI.

Still, Edison coach Nick Cappuccilli liked what he saw out of his sophomore starting pitcher, Noah Hunter, who lasted into the fourth inning.

"In the big situation, he wants to be there and compete, show everybody what he can do," Cappuccilli said. "It's fun when you have a natural competitor, you can put him in any big spot and he's not scared, he's not going to back down from anything. He stepped up really well for being against such a talented team like Huntington."

Cappuccilli said he has a young and inexperienced team this season, but the Chargers have proven competitive. Landon Veirs was two for three on Tuesday, with Shane Timmons smacking a double and Jordan Alvarez also recording a hit.

Huntington Beach hosts Los Alamitos (1-1 in league) on Thursday in continued league action, while Edison plays at Fountain Valley (2-2 in league).

The Barons earned a 4-1 home win over Los Alamitos on Tuesday, behind a strong outing by sophomore starting pitcher Billy Kutsch.

when my back's to the wall, I'm pretty good at taking things on."

Harrington, who shot a two under par round of 69 on Sunday and earned the $300,000 first-prize check, countered the two double bogeys with six birdies.

His tee shot on par-four No. 16 went way left and he ended up carding a six, which put him a shot behind both Jaidee and Jimenez at the time.

"A right-to-left dogleg on a left-to-right wind is never going to be easy," Harrington said. "Maybe I should just have just accepted it and hit down into the righthand rough. In hindsight, it would have been a lot better than where I hit it."

He came back firing on No. 17, earning his third birdie of the tournament on the par-three by making a downhill birdie putt of about 15 feet. Meanwhile, Jimenez — who had made eagle on No. 16 — left his par putt short, and Jaidee made par.

Jaidee was the only player in the final group to find the fairway off the tee at the par-five No. 18, but his third shot went well past the hole to take away any realistic birdie chance. That set the stage for Harrington, who said he had mostly downhill birdie putts on the day, with the wind gusting to more than 30 miles per hour.

"It's the first one I had all day uphill, and there wasn't a crosswind," said Harrington, who is set to be inducted into the World Golf Hall of Fame in June. "I was just like, 'This is your chance, you have an opportunity."

The putt hit the left side of the cup and spun around before going in.

Harrington, who won back-to-back British Open championships in 2007 and '08 as well as the 2008 PGA Championship, also still plays some PGA Tour events. Still, he relishes the chance to be on the PGA Tour Champions as well. With the victory, he moved to No. 5 in the Charles Schwab Cup standings.

A week after St. Patrick's Day, it took more than luck to win this title.

"This is the great thing about the Champions Tour, it allows us to relive our past glories," Harrington said. "We get to hit shots where we feel anxious, we feel nervous, we feel excited. And it doesn't change, when you've got a putt to win or a shot to win, you don't want to mess up in front of people."

Defending champion Ernie Els, bidding to bechampion come the first three-time winner of the Hoag Classic, finished tied for 33rd at three under par.

In his post-round remarks to the crowd, Harrington called the course at Newport Beach Country Club his favorite on the

"Newport Beach has served as home to the Hoag Classic from its inception and remains a player favorite on the PGA Tour Champions," said Scott Easton, first-year executive director of the Hoag Classic, in a statement. "A tremendous thanks to Hoag as title sponsor, our presenting partners City National Bank and McCarthy Building Companies, more than 200 other corporate partners and our tremendous volunteers who help make this event possible.
