CONTRACTORS with Patriot Environmental Services continue with oil spill cleanup on Wednesday at Talbert Marsh in Huntington Beach.

Local leaders survey oil spill cleanup at Talbert Marsh

BY MATT SZABO

Local elected officials took a tour of the oil-spill-affected Talbert Marsh in Huntington Beach on Wednesday, as the clean-up continues.

Workers from Patriot Environmental Services, based in Wilmington, used rakes and large white bags to remove oil from the area near the rocks by the shore. The oil was then deposited in a dumpster at the marsh, located south of Brookhurst Street off Pacific Coast Highway.

Coastal cities set official responses to oil spill

Laguna Beach, Newport Beach, Huntington Beach declare local states of emergency, opening up routes to disaster response.

BY ANDREW TURNER, LILLY NGUYEN

Laguna Beach has declared a local emergency with respect to the offshore oil spill that occurred over the weekend, providing a path for emergency orders to be implemented.

The Laguna Beach City Council voted unanimously in favor of the associated resolution Tuesday night, taking the step two days after Gov. Gavin Newsom declared a state of emergency in Orange County regarding the incident.

Reports had 144,000 gallons of crude oil spilling into the Pacific Ocean off the county's coastline, resulting in beach closures as far south as Dana Point as of Tuesday.

In passing the resolution, the council bestowed upon City Manager Shohreh Dupuis the power to issue and enforce policy related to the containment, cleanup and remediation of the oil spill, as well as to create regulations that limit public exposure to crude oil.

The city manager may also negotiate and enter into contracts that do not exceed $500,000 for services related to the oil spill, and Dupuis is authorized to send letters on the city's behalf in support of recovery efforts.

In a report to the council on Tuesday, Marine Safety Chief Kevin Snow said that the city first saw oil come ashore on some of its beaches on Sunday. Oil had been spotted using drones on Monday,

Suspects under arrest in shooting in downtown Huntington Beach

BY LILLY NGUYEN

An investigation into a downtown Huntington Beach double shooting late Tuesday is ongoing, police officials announced Wednesday in a news release, adding there are no current threats to public safety.

Officers responded to reports of gunfire at around 11:40 p.m. on Tuesday near 3rd Street and Walnut Avenue. Upon arrival, police located two adult men who had suffered gunshot wounds.

Both men were transported to a local hospital. Their conditions are unknown, but they are expected to survive their injuries, officials said.

During a vehicle stop near the crime scene later, police located and arrested five individuals who matched descriptions of the suspects, according to Huntington Beach Police Department spokeswoman Jennifer Carey.

All were taken to the Huntington Beach Police Station for further questioning. Police did not confirm the names of the suspects.

Preliminary investigation indicates that there was an argument and physical altercation between two parties prior to the shooting.

Assistant city manager in N.B. leaves for private sector, no new hire yet set

BY LILLY NGUYEN

Newport Beach City Council members and staff said their goodbyes to Assistant City Manager Carol Jacobs at what would be her last council meeting Sept. 28.

Jacobs is leaving for a job in the private sector, city officials said. City spokesman John Pope confirmed that her last day would be Oct. 8.

She first came to the city in 2015.

"We would be remiss if we didn't pause to recognize Carol for her six years of service to our community," said Mayor Brad Avery late last month. "We are certainly going to miss her ... since 2015, Carol has managed a

Faithful pets celebrated in annual Blessing of the Animals

THE REV. CANON

Cindy Evans Voorhees, St. James Episcopal Church Newport Beach blesses a pig during the annual Blessing of the Animals Sunday.

BY SUSAN HOFFMAN

Every year on or around the fourth day of October, people all over the world, residents of Orange County included, gather to celebrate St. Francis Day in honor of the patron saint of animals, Saint Francis of Assisi. In remembrance of his love for all creatures, guardians or pet parents traditionally take their animal companions to church for a Blessing of the Animals.

According to the Humane Society, the earliest books about Saint Francis were written by Thomas of Celano, a member of Francis' religious order who knew the saint personally. Thomas' books reveal Francis' love for animals and his conviction that religious faith and care for God's creatures go hand in hand.

Today, over 3 million people a year make a pilgrimage to the tomb of St. Francis in the town of Assisi, revealing him to be one of the most popular and beloved saints of all time.

In 1979, Pope John Paul II paid tribute to Francis' love for creation by declaring him the patron saint of ecologists.

The pope encouraged prisoners to follow the example of Saint Francis by embracing all creatures as members of a single family and by offering respect, dignity and care to each family member.

"It is my hope that the inspiration of Saint Francis will help us to keep ever alive a sense of 'fraternity' with all those good and beautiful things which Almighty God has created," he said in his declaration. "And may he remind us of our serious obligation to respect and watch over them with care, in light of that greater and higher fraternity that exists within the human family."

Among the annual local services of the Blessing of the Animals, a custom that originated in the 13th century, is Holy Spirit Catholic Church in Fountain Valley, which took on the custom in 2006 and usually sees from 25 to 30 animals brought to the service.

"We mainly have dogs, but there have been cats, parrots, birds, iguana, snake, chinchilla and even a fish in a bowl," said Pat Erskine, business manager for the church.

Father Michael Hanifin of St. Joachim in Costa Mesa has been blessing animals for seven years in the outdoor playground on the church campus.

"We usually have 60 to 70 dogs, cats, lizards, birds, parrots and doves [brought in for blessing]," said Fr. Hanifin. "We get a lot of children bringing pets, lots of enthusiasm and excitement, a wee bit of chaos — all part of the ritual of interacting with other animals they may be unfriendlier with."

St. James Episcopal Church in Newport Beach rolled out the "green" carpet this year for the animal guests. About 185 people and 92 pets showed up for the blessing, including some in wheelchairs and strollers and some up for pet adoption.

"This year we have a unicorn pony, emu, some goats and a pig celebrating with us all the way from Hemet," said Rev. Canon Cindy Evans Voorhees. "We have a synthetic green grass runway running down the center aisle inside the church to make our four-legged, furry, hopping, slithering, swimming — yes, I have even blessed goldfish — feel welcome and extra special."

A special after-church event at St. James included popcorn, face painting and a balloon artist.

variety of high-profile programs here at the city — projects and issues, working closely with all city departments."

Avery credited Jacobs with having established and managed the city's response to homelessness with the homelessness task force, for working on the city's partnership with Costa Mesa on a bridge shelter that opened earlier this year and for working on future plans to build permanent supportive housing in Newport Beach. Additionally, she worked with the City Council to establish the city's harbor department, which first came into conception in 2018, and was "instrumental" in the acquisition in the development of the Newport Beach Animal Shelter among other responsibilities and efforts in departments citywide, according to Avery.

Prior to her time in Newport Beach, Jacobs was city manager in Stanton and Eastvale and also once served as an interim city manager in Grand Terrace. Jacobs was also part of the city of Costa Mesa's staff.

"I have come to love the community and all of the exceptional employees who work here. This community is blessed with natural beauty, amazing amenities and a wonderful environment for everyone to enjoy the highest quality of life," Jacobs said in an email, adding she was thankful to City Manager Grace Leung, former City Manager Dave Kiff and the management team.

"I have enjoyed our time together and wish you only the best as you continue to make the city of Newport the best it can be," said Jacobs.

Pope said there is no timeline for how or when the new assistant city manager will be hired.

The undersigned or its predecessor caused said Notice of Default and Election to Sell to be recorded in the county where the real property is located. NOTICE TO POTENTIAL BIDDERS: If you are considering bidding on this property lien, you should understand that there are risks involved in bidding at a trustee auction. You will be bidding on a lien, not on the property itself. Placing the highest bid at a trustee auction does not automatically entitle you to free and clear ownership of the property. You should also be aware that the lien being auctioned off may be a junior lien. If you are the highest bidder at the auction, you are or may be responsible for paying off all liens senior to the lien being auctioned off, before you can receive clear title to the property. You are encouraged to investigate the existence, priority, and size of outstanding liens that may exist on this property by contacting the county recorder's office or a title insurance company, either of which may charge you a fee for this information. If you consult either of these resources, you should be aware that the same lender may hold more than one mortgage or deed of trust on the property. NOTICE TO PROPERTY OWNER: The sale date shown on this notice of sale may be postponed one or more times by the mortgagee, beneficiary, trustee, or a court, pursuant to Section 2924g of the California Civil Code. The law requires that information about trustee sale postponements be made available to you and to the public, as a courtesy to those not present at the sale. If you wish to learn whether your sale date has been postponed, and, if applicable, the rescheduled time and date for the sale of this property, you may call (844) 477-7869 or visit this Internet Web site WWW.STOXPOSTING.COM, using the file number assigned to this case 087205-CA. Information about postponements that are very short in duration or that occur close in time to the scheduled sale may not immediately be reflected in the telephone information or on the Internet Web site. The best way to verify postponement information is to attend the scheduled sale. NOTICE TO TENANT: Effective January 1, 2021, you may have a right to purchase this property after the trustee auction pursuant to Section 2924m of the California Civil Code. If you are an "eligible tenant buyer," you can purchase the property if you match the last and highest bid placed at the trustee auction. If you are an "eligible bidder," you may be able to purchase the property if you exceed the last and highest bid placed at the trustee auction. There are three steps to exercising this right of purchase. First, 48 hours after the date of the trustee sale, you can call (855) 313-3319, or visit this internet website www.clearreconcorp.com, using the file number assigned to this case 087205-CA to find the date on which the trustee's sale was held, the amount of the last and highest bid, and the address of the trustee. Second, you must send a written notice of intent to place a bid so that the trustee receives it no more than 15 days after the trustee's sale. Third, you must submit a bid so that the trustee receives it no more than 45 days after the trustee's sale. If you think you may qualify as an "eligible tenant buyer" or "eligible bidder," you should consider contacting an attorney or appropriate real estate professional immediately for advice regarding this potential right to purchase. NOTICE TO POTENTIAL BIDDERS: If you are considering bidding on this property lien, you should understand that there are risks involved in bidding at a trustee auction. You will be bidding on a lien, not on the property itself. Placing the highest bid at a trustee auction does not automatically entitle you to free and clear ownership of the property. You should also be aware that the lien being auctioned off may be a junior lien. If you are the highest bidder at the auction, you are or may be responsible for paying off all liens senior to the lien being auctioned off, before you can receive clear title to the property. You are encouraged to investigate the existence, priority, and size of outstanding liens that may exist on this property by contacting the county recorder's office or a title insurance company, either of which may charge you a fee for this information. If you consult either of these resources, you should be aware that the same lender may hold more than one mortgage or deed of trust on the property. NOTICE TO PROPERTY OWNER: The sale date shown on this notice of sale may be postponed one or more times by the mortgagee, beneficiary, trustee, or a court, pursuant to Section 2924g of the California Civil Code. The law requires that information about trustee sale postponements be made available to you and to the public, as a courtesy to those not present at the sale. If you wish to learn whether your sale date has been postponed, and, if applicable, the rescheduled time and date for the sale of this property, you may call (844) 477-7869 or visit this Internet Web site WWW.STOXPOSTING.COM, using the file number assigned to this case 086000-CA. Information about postponements that are very short in duration or that occur close in time to the scheduled sale may not immediately be reflected in the telephone information or on the Internet Web site. The best way to verify postponement information is to attend the scheduled sale. NOTICE TO TENANT: Effective January 1, 2021, you may have a right to purchase this property after the trustee auction pursuant to Section 2924m of the California Civil Code. If you are an "eligible tenant buyer," you can purchase the property if you match the last and highest bid placed at the trustee auction. If you are an "eligible bidder," you may be able to purchase the property if you exceed the last and highest bid placed at the trustee auction. There are three steps to exercising this right of purchase. First, 48 hours after the date of the trustee sale, you can call (855) 313-3319, or visit this internet website www.clearreconcorp.com, using the file number assigned to this case 086000-CA to find the date on which the trustee's sale was held, the amount of the last and highest bid, and the address of the trustee. Second, you must send a written notice of intent to place a bid so that the trustee receives it no more than 15 days after the trustee's sale. Third, you must submit a bid so that the trustee receives it no more than 45 days after the trustee's sale. If you think you may qualify as an "eligible tenant buyer" or "eligible bidder," you should consider contacting an attorney or appropriate real estate professional immediately for advice regarding this potential right to purchase. too, but Snow said no additional oil had been seen in Laguna Beach on Tuesday. "Knowing that we have that volume of oil off our coast, the potential for it to come ashore still exists, especially since we're going to have a change of weather with our normal prevailing northwest winds, where the wind is blowing toward the shore," Snow said. "Some of that storm activity turned out to be beneficial because of the wind direction, at least beneficial to Laguna." Snow also indicated that three large cleanup vessels had been operating between Dana Point and Newport Harbor to focus on containment and recovery of the oil. "Even though we've been minimally impacted [at our beaches], there's still a lot of oil out there," Mayor Bob Whalen said. "That's why we just have to take this thing day to day." City officials stated that now is not the time for volunteers to help with the cleanup effort, but Dupuis said that several opportunities would become available eventually to provide future assistance, including through the Pacific Marine Mammal Center, the Surfrider Foundation and California Volunteers. The impact on the tourist industry was a concern for members of the council. Ashley Johnson, the president and CEO of Visit Laguna Beach, addressed the matter, saying that there had been an "influx of cancellations" for the hotel industry as the public became increasingly aware of beach closures due to the oil spill. "I just wanted to let you know that our organization is tracking lost tourism revenues as best as possible due to hotel cancellations related to lack of beach access," Johnson said. "I have been in constant contact with our hotel partners, and they are tracking those cancellations from Sunday morning on as they're related to the spill, and we'll update you later this week." Some members of the public called for an end to offshore oil drilling, including Judie Mancuso, who identified herself as the founder of the political nonprofit Social Compassion in Legislation. "The residents of Laguna Beach and all our coastal towns, our animals, our ocean, our beaches, and our local economy are victims of corporate negligence and greed, ushered in by those politicians who are beholden to big oil and have weakened environmental regulations," Mancuso said in remarks at Tuesday's meeting. Huntington Beach and Newport Beach have also declared local emergencies related to the oil spill. Newport Beach declared a local emergency Wednesday in response to the oil spill that's affected much of Orange County's coastline. The declaration was signed off on by City Manager Grace Leung, but city officials will ratify it at the city's next council meeting on Oct. 12. Mayor Brad Avery said in a call that the emergency declaration allows the city to get more resources to help mitigate the financial impacts of the oil spill for the city and provide aid to private business owners throughout Newport Beach. It also cuts through some of the legislative red tape. Avery said the oil slick appears to have mostly moved south of the city's beaches, but their soft closure will remain to keep people out of the water and away from the high tide line. "There's still oil out there, bits and pieces that will go on for a while. I think we're getting toward a steady state. Oil is still emerging but not huge amounts," said Avery. The city is currently working with the U.S. Coast Guard and the Orange County Sheriff's Department to see if there's any way to reopen the harbor, which temporarily closed earlier this week, for maritime businesses to continue operating. "Our first priority is to protect the environment, but we don't want the harbor to be closed any longer than it has to be," said Avery.

of cleaning up the Talbert Marsh so far," said John Villa, executive director of the nonprofit Huntington Beach Wetlands Conservancy. "They have still some more to do on Talbert Marsh, then eventually they'll be working on Brookhurst Marsh and Magnolia Marsh." Villa said 127 acres in total have been affected, but the water quality has seen a steady improvement over the last two days. Villa led a tour Wednesday for elected officials including state Senators Dave Min and Tom Umberg, Assemblywoman Cottie Petrie-Norris, Orange County Supervisor Katrina Foley and Huntington Beach Mayor Kim Carr. Foley said volunteers are being sought for the cleanup effort. Registration is required at apps.wildlife.ca.gov/OSPRVVolunteer-Form, and she said volunteers would need to undergo a four-hour training session via Zoom.

"We're hoping that thousands of people sign up and register in advance," Foley said. "The faster we clean this up, the faster we can all get back to going to the beach. Our businesses can get open, our harbors open, and we can reduce the damage that this has caused." Meanwhile, Carr announced that the city of Huntington Beach has launched a webpage, huntingtonbeachca.gov/oilspill-response, for updates on the spill. She said city staff is conducting twice-daily flyovers, utilizing Huntington Beach Police Department helicopters. Surf City beaches remain partially open, with the area from the lifeguard towers to the water closed. "We are still seeing significant quantities of oil off the coast of Huntington Beach," Carr said. The inlet from the ocean to the Talbert Marsh was covered by a sand berm by Sunday at 1:30 p.m., Villa said, to stop any new contamination from coming in. Yellow booms for containment and white booms for oil absorption are also set up. Villa said the Wetlands Conservancy did a drill about nine months ago, conducted with the California Department of Fish and Wildlife's Office of Spill Prevention and Response, which helped with a quick response time over the weekend. "It could have been a lot worse for us, as we saw in 1990 with the American Trader spill, but we were able to close off and control things a lot faster this time around," Villa said, referencing the spill 31 years ago off the coast of Huntington Beach that emptied nearly 417,000 gallons of crude oil along the Orange County coast and killed fish and about 3,400 birds. Up to 144,000 gallons were spilled in this month's incident. Min, whose 37th District includes Newport Beach, Laguna Beach and part of Huntington Beach, said he plans to introduce legislation in January that would end all drilling — not just new drilling — on state waters up and down the coastline. "All of the spills we've had recently have come from leases that go back 40 or 50 years," Min said. "These are not new leases, and we need to end that problem. Our coastline is too beautiful, too valuable and too precious — and too important to our economy, frankly — for us to keep running this risk of causing oil spills, which is endemic to oil exploration and drilling offshore."
