Group expects recall effort to qualify

Organizers of a Newport Beach-based attempt to oust Gov. Gavin Newsom are confident that they have enough signatures.

BY CITY NEWS SERVICE

Organizers of the Newport Beach-based effort to recall Gov. Gavin Newsom said they believe they have collected nearly 2.1 million signatures to qualify the recall for the ballot. The deadline for filing the signatures was Wednesday.

"It'll come close," to 2.1 million, said Anne Dunsmore, campaign manager for Rescue California — Recall Gavin Newsom. "Maybe it will go over, but it's safe to say it will come close."

The recall requires valid signatures from 1,495,709 registered voters, 12% of the 12,464,235 votes cast in the 2018 gubernatorial election, according to the Secretary of State's office.

Newsom on Tuesday said he expects the recall to qualify for the ballot. He also criticized the need for a special recall election, calling it a "waste of time" and money because the 2022 gubernatorial primary will be a few months later.

Orange County Supervisor Don Wagner, a co-chair of the recall effort, said that no matter how close the reelection campaign, it is still appropriate to push for a recall as soon as possible. "Gavin can do a lot of damage between now and then," Wagner said. "Even if Gavin survives the recall or the public says no to Gavin but yes to another Democrat there's something to be said for keeping whoever is governor focused on the fact that you need to be responsive to the public."

Dunsmore said Newsom "has really created so many problems in such a short period of time it's very risky to keep him in office."

In February, the Secretary of State's

H.B. High puts Robin Hood back on stage

The musical will be performed outdoors this weekend at Rose Center Theater in Westminster.

BY MATT SZABO

Olivia Aniceto was just about ready to play her dream role of Belle in "Beauty and the Beast."

Then, the world changed.

Olivia, then a Huntington Beach High junior, found out at a March 12, 2020, dress rehearsal that the Huntington Beach Academy for the Performing Arts performance would not go on as scheduled the following day. The coronavirus pandemic had begun.

"It was kind of heartbreaking, for me at least," Olivia said. "That was my dream role, and then all of a sudden everything is just getting shut down. It was just crazy. But you live and move on, I guess."

A year later, she is again playing a leading role. The academy is putting on a modified musical, "Robin Hood and the White Arrow," outdoors at the Rose Center Theater in Westminster. Olivia is one of two actresses to play Maid Marian, along with fellow Huntington Beach High senior Rachel Bronder.

The performance on Sunday — the day Orange County moved into the red tier — was the first live production that academy has put on since COVID-19 began. Tickets are available for the second weekend of Robin Hood shows, on Friday through Sunday at 7 p.m., at hbapa.org/see.

Tim Nelson, the HBAPA musical theater department chair who composed the show's music and is directing, said it has been like a roller coaster trying to get the show to the stage. But it is important, as it serves as a fundraiser for the department, along with a virtual silent auction that runs through March 28.

ROBIN HOOD and his Merry Men perform during the Huntington Beach Academy for the Performing Arts production of "Robin Hood and the White Arrow."

"We're just trying to get as much word out as possible to help keep everything moving along for the kids," Nelson said.

"With COVID, I have to keep the cast size down so there's space backstage. Also, as we were staging the show, all the things like hugs and kisses can't happen with Robin and Marian. Holding hands can't happen, and they all wear gloves. So, it's been another challenge just doing the staging with COVID requirements, but it looks beautiful. It all comes across well."

Nelson said the show has a cast of 39, but only about 20 will perform during any given show. The audience is socially distanced in pods, and performing outside has also proven interesting. Since daylight saving time started last weekend, the show starts while it is still light outside.

Still, Nelson said his young actors, who are masked during the performance, have handled it like pros.

"In some cases, it's made the students become better physical actors," he said. "You have to do so much more full-body acting when your mouth is covered with a mask. You have to express with your eyes, and your hands. They've risen to that oc-

Friends of Newport Beach Animal Shelter feeling pawstitive as new facility gets permit

THIS PROPOSED LOCATION of a new public animal shelter for Newport Beach is at 20282 Riverside Drive. Planning Commission members approved a conditional use permit for the property on March 4.

The city's Planning Commission gives approval for the kennel that can house up to 29 animals.

BY LILLY NGUYEN

Newport Beach is finally getting its first permanent animal shelter.

Earlier this month, the Newport Beach Planning Commission approved a conditional use permit for the establishment of a new shelter on Riverside Drive. It will replace the existing residential kennel with a 1,565-square-foot, single-story shelter and a 755-square-foot kennel that can house up to 29 dogs.

It will also include four surface parking spaces in the front yard, new gates and fencing within the front and in the rear yard, adequate drainage and disposal of natural precipitation and control of animal waste and all other improvements necessary.

It will be a "no-kill" shelter.

It was noted in a staff report that up until now the city of Newport Beach has never had a permanent public animal shelter and shelter services were largely contracted out by the city to providers, including the Orange County Humane Society. City officials had authorized the use of an existing residential kennel at 20302 Riverside Drive, which Animal Control oversees.

With approvals, the operation will move nearby, to 20282 Riverside Drive.

"We've been running the shelter for five years and we lease the space. So what we would do is do the same operation at the new place. Any animal that we pick up in Animal Control or the city finds comes to the animal shelter," Animal Control super-

Supporters rally for teacher, coach with cancer

BY ANDREW TURNER

A local high school teacher and baseball coach is battling cancer again.

Aaron Pines, a math instructor at Edison High School and the head baseball coach at Los Amigos, said he recently resumed chemotherapy as part of the treatment for the disease, which he first began fighting in 2019.

He said the cancer started on his tongue and neck, and he underwent multiple surgeries to remove it. Then it returned in the summer of 2020, and he had another surgery in July.

"Then starting in September or October, I went through chemo and radiation treatment concurrently and missed the first three months of school this year," said Pines, who is 33. "The chemo and radiation was really bad. That was the hardest part."

In November, he got married to his wife, Deriah, the Five Crowns in Corona del Mar. Through the holidays, he continued to make a slow recovery as he worked to regain his eating habits and the ability to swallow following neck surgery.

But on Jan. 15, Pines said a phone call brought more bad news. The results of an examination indicated that the cancer had spread to his lungs and pelvic bone.

Many well-wishers have come office said that 83.7% of the signatures were proving to be valid, Dunsmore said. "That could go up or down, but I don't think the variance will be significant," Dunsmore said. The validity rate might be higher than usual because the organizers are fetching most of the signatures with direct-mail appeals, Wagner said. "They're targeting folks that you know are sympathetic, and they have some confidence they will open the mail," Wagner said. "They either throw it away or sign it and get it back. And it's not like they're going to sign Mickey Mouse ... which is what you get sometimes [collecting signatures] at grocery stores." Wagner added he was surprised at how high the validity rate was. "I've never seen in all my years of watching this stuff" a validity rate that high, he said. "So we are very, very confident that not only did we hit the mark but that the public is dissatisfied with the direction of the governor and want change." Wagner said the recall was not just motivated by Newsom's response to the pandemic. "We have one of the highest unemployment rates in the country, and he allowed about $30 billion in fraud [with unemployment assistance] and the highest poverty rate or very close to it, and yet we are overtaxed," Wagner said.

"Not only the performance aspect of it, but rehearsing as well," Sean said. "One of the reasons I do love doing theater so much is being able to be a part of an ensemble of actors that shares common interests with me. We work collectively to tell a story. With Robin Hood, there's themes of hope and finding that light at the end of the tunnel, which is very much relevant today. I think there's been a lot of darkness in the past year." # Marina bounces back with shutout win over Ocean View

BY ANTHONY CIARDELLI

MARINA'S WYATT MCCLLOUR

Marina High football head coach Jeff Turley didn't get to see his Vikings finish off their 34-0 win over Ocean View Wednesday at Ocean View High School.

catches a pass for a touchdown in the second quarter over Ocean View's Cash Schnekenburger.

By the time the clock ran out in the fourth quarter, Turley was on his way to his son's graduation from medical school.

Perhaps inspired by Turley's son, Marina was surgical in its dismantling of Ocean View, stifling a Seahawks offense that had produced 32 points and over 450 rushing yards in their opening-week win against Estancia. Marina allowed the Seahawks to enter the red zone just twice all night.

Senior cornerback Hung Trinh felt the Vikings defense had something to prove following their 42-6 loss to rival Huntington Beach the week prior.

"We were really mad that we got blown out," Trinh said. "We're not used to that against H.B., so to play another local school, we wanted to go out hard."

On offense, Brant

Riederich had a massive night, rushing for 163 yards and two touchdowns. Senior quarterback Jack Miller added a 20-yard touchdown pass to Wyatt McClour, and Gavin Del Toro contributed a 59-yard touchdown run of his own.

Marina jumped out to an early lead it never relinquished.

Late in the first quarter, senior defensive tackle Kash Soto sacked Ocean View quarterback Hunter Arce for a 15-yard loss, forcing them to punt. On the first play following Ocean View's punt, Riederich collected a lateral pitch from Miller, broke multiple tackles and traced the sideline 89 yards to the end zone.

MARINA'S JACK MILLER throws a pass under pressure from Ocean View's Jeffrey Garcia during a game at Ocean View High School Wednesday night won by the Vikings 34-0.

That staked Marina to a 6-0 lead.

"I didn't see a whole lot," Riederich said. "I got spun around and it was a little quick, I was shocked to get free on that one."

The Vikings continued their success in the second quarter when Miller launched a deep pass to the back of the end zone that found McClour for a 20-yard touchdown pass. That extended the Marina lead to 13-0 following a Luke Lastra extra point.

Riederich broke off another long touchdown run in the third quarter, this time for 57 yards and a 20-0 Marina lead.

After Ayden Lastra added a 9-yard touchdown run extending the lead to 27-0 after the extra point, Del Toro finished things off on a quarterback keeper that he took 59 yards to the end zone, bringing the final tally to 34-0 Marina.

Linebacker coach Michael McMahon, who took over head coaching duties after Turley departed in the third quarter, was happy to see his team bounce back.

"It feels really good because we've been waiting to play," McMahon said. "We're still a little off because COVID kept us down a little bit. I think we just played a really good game, but we still have to pick it up. If you do what you're supposed to do, you're going to win."

For Ocean View, it was a struggle to generate any offense. They relied heavily on junior running back Anthony Ramirez, who led the Seahawks with 86 yards on 18 rushing attempts. Ramirez's shining moment came when he broke through the stout Marina defense for a 49-yard run.

That run set the Seahawks up with a first down from the 9-yard line, but a false start penalty pushed them back to the 14. Marina eventually forced Ocean View to turn the ball over on downs.

Ocean View offensive line and linebacker coach Peter Kim, who filled in as head coach for a second week in a row after head coach Luis Nunez's positive COVID-19 test, credited Marina.

"They were just better than us tonight in all aspects of the game," Kim said. "They gave us an old school butt kicking. We wanted to run the ball with Ramirez, but they took him away. I tip my hat to Marina."
