Orange County reflects on death of Kobe Bryant, as Tuesday marked the one-year anniversary of the crash that killed the Lakers legend, a Newport Beach resident, and eight other people.

Orange Coast College women's basketball coach Samantha Doucette said Monday night she reckoned she would not spend much time on social media the following day.

The one-year anniversary of the helicopter crash that took the lives of Kobe Bryant, his daughter, Gianna, and seven others arrived on Tuesday.

Bryant, a Los Angeles Lakers great and a Newport Beach resident, has been celebrated in numerous ways — from murals and memorabilia collections to Orange County declaring Aug. 24 to be "Kobe Bryant Day" in recognition of the Nos. 8 and 24 he wore during his playing career.

Doucette has coped with the tragedy by remembering those who were lost on her own terms, when she chooses to as opposed to when a reminder comes up unexpectedly.

"I guess you could say I'm a Kobe fanatic, even more now than I was before," said Doucette, who was a three-time NAIA All-American while playing for the Vanguard University women's basketball team. "I'm buying all of his books, any magazine that [his face is] on. That's how I feel close to that short time in my life, when I was able to learn from him and be a part of his life."

Also lost in the fatal accident were Orange Coast College baseball coach John Altobelli, his wife, Keri, and daughter, Alyssa; Sarah and Payton Chester, a mother and daughter from

Return to 'purple' opens door for cross-country

BY ANDREW TURNER

The first good news for high school sports in some time came on Monday with the announcement that the regional stay-at-home order due to the coronavirus pandemic was no longer in effect.

A consequence of that saw counties return to their respective tiers in the state's reopening guidelines, opening the door for some high school sports to begin.

Orange County and the entire CIF Southern Section begin this new dawn in the "purple" tier, under which cross-country is the only fall sport in the section that would be allowed to compete at this time.

"I know that the State CIF and the Southern Section have been incredibly committed to providing as close to as many contests as possible for as many student-athletes as possible, just because it is such a huge role in the social and emotional education of high school students," Huntington Beach Union High School District athletic director James Perry said.

"It's been very obvious that the biggest and best advocates for this have been our student-athletes. They have been incredibly dedicated to the protocols. They've been incredibly accountable to each other because they don't want to lose any more of what has already been lost."

The decision now falls to local school districts, following the guidance of health officials, on when their schools can return to competition against other schools.

Huntington Beach Union High School District has plans in place for its six schools — Edison, Fountain Valley, Huntington Beach, Marina, Ocean View and Westminster — to compete against each other if schools in leagues in which it has representation are unable to participate.

"We've made plans to, if we need to, our six schools will compete against each other, and if the others can figure out a way, then we've created some wiggle room in the schedules for them to come in," Perry said.

"We hope they're in. We hope their kids get a chance to participate, and we've got obviously a plan for that to happen with everybody back and doing what we do, but if not, we've got plans to take care of our six schools."

Last week, the CIF canceled its postseason for fall sports, a decision that was made in an effort to open more time for sports that

'Relief' as O.C. salons, eateries reopen

Businesses hampered by stay-at-home orders connected to pandemic welcome customers as state reverses course.

BY SARA CARDINE

Noting California is "turning a critical corner" in its battle against the coronavirus as regional ICU capacities recover from recent critical levels, state health officials on Monday lifted a stay-at-home order for Southern California, including Orange County.

In effect since Dec. 7, the order restricted business operations, limiting customer capacity and forcing partial or full closures in some sectors, including restaurants and personal care services.

Orange County restaurants are now allowed to return to offering outdoor dining, while hair and nail salons can reopen after a 50-day closure.

Susie Smith, owner of Huntington Beach hair salon Makin Waves, wasted no time bringing the business back online. Hearing late Sunday night personal care services could reopen, she had the shop up and running by noon Monday.

"There's a huge sense of relief," said Smith, describing the past 10 months of the pandemic as an anxiety-provoking roller coaster ride.

"It's disheartening to think everything you've put your whole life into, to build a successful and comfortable life, could just be taken away overnight, with no solutions, no answers and no timeline," she continued. "It's wreaking havoc on us, because we feel like we don't know what's next."

Makin Waves, a downtown fixture since 1997, has been relatively lucky. A devoted clientele and some money in savings have made all the difference. By Tuesday, a stream of regulars and walk-ins were booking appointments for socially distanced cuts and colors.

"The amount of support we've been getting from our clientele has been amazing," said Smith's son, James Coelho, who works at the shop. "Now we can open our doors again — it's huge. I'm freakin' excited to get back to it. We've missed our customers."

A statewide curfew that asked residents to limit their movements between 10 p.m. and 5 a.m. to further halt the spread of the virus was also lifted Monday. Gov. Gavin Newsom credited a statewide decline in new coronavirus infections and hospitalizations for the change.

Monday's announcement is a small ray of hope for Michael Byrne, co-owner of the Laguna Beach bar the Saloon and owner of Roux Creole Cuisine. After a se-

N.B. officials break ground on new Fire Station No. 2

Newport Beach City Council members broke ground Tuesday on what will be the site of the city's new Fire Station No. 2 — a plan that has been on Newport Beach's wish list for several years.

The new structure on the corner of 28th Street and Newport Boulevard will replace the Lido Fire Station No. 2 on 32nd Street — built in 1953 — which city officials determined in 2014 had "exceeded its useful life," according to a Nov. 10 staff report.

Instead of demolishing the current station and building a new structure on site, the city purchased a 17,693-square-foot property at 2807 Newport Boulevard in Jan. 2018 and decided to keep the Lido Station operable in the interim.

The former site of a McDonald's restaurant, the new location is larger and will provide better access to more residential areas than the old station, fire officials said in a presentation to the city.

Council members in November accepted a $6,289,000 bid for the work from Rialto-based Robert Clapper Construction Services, Inc., eventually signing a not-to-exceed contract of $10 million.

Having recently issued a notice to proceed to the contractor, work is anticipated to begin soon after Tuesday's ceremony. City officials are estimating the new station could be up and running by spring 2022.

Newport Beach; Huntington Beach resident and Mamba Academy basketball coach Christina Mauser, and Ara Zobayan, the pilot for the ill-fated trip that was headed for a basketball tournament at the Mamba Sports Academy in Thousand Oaks.

Doucette, who said she formerly coached two teams in the Mamba Sports Academy, described the aftermath of the tragedy as world-stopping.

“Not only was the entire world on pause, but really everything going on within our teams because we just lost our leader, we lost some of our players, and one of my players lost her mom,” Doucette said.

She said it had been like a dream when she did coach at the Mamba Sports Academy, interacting with Bryant five days a week, not only learning from him but being treated like a normal person.

“He treated all of us like we had known him for years and we grew up together,” Doucette said. “Obviously, him and I, we’re different ages, but that’s how he treated anyone that he was close with was like you were his friend and he remembered little things about your life.”

Kobe Bryant murals were a popular destination for those wishing to celebrate the life of the Southern California sports icon on Tuesday. At the mural of Kobe and Gianna located on the wall of El Toro Bravo market in Costa Mesa, more than a dozen candles were lit in their memory.

Allie Ramirez, 30, of Santa Ana, said watching Kobe and the Lakers was a communal experience that brought people together. After leaving flowers at the site, she recalled being with fellow fans outside Staples Center for Bryant’s last game.

“It was like a bunch of Lakers fans, and we actually went to a restaurant right next door,” Ramirez reminisced. “We were all watching the game there, and it was like we were inside the Staples Center. It was so amazing. It was one of the coolest experiences I have ever had.”

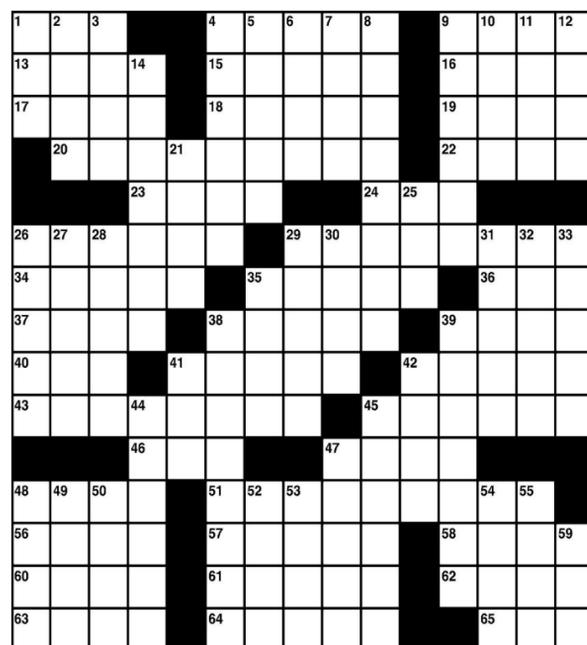

Tyson Pruong, 32, of Santa Ana, came with Ramirez, who also wore a shirt with the Nos. 24, 8 and 2,

Frank Hood Trane

October 14, 1931 - January 13, 2021

Frank was born in La Crosse Wisconsin in 1931 to Reuben and Helen Trane with older twin siblings, Jim and Betty. Frank’s grandfather had emigrated from Tromso, Norway in 1864, and with Frank’s father incorporated the Trane Co. in 1913.

Frank graduated Saint Paul’s School in Concord, New Hampshire in 1950. He was admitted to Stanford after his Junior year of high school.

Frank attended Stanford School of Engineering and graduated Cum Laude in 1953, receiving the honorary engineering distinction of Tau Beta Pi. He attended Stanford Graduate School of Business and was class of 1955. He was a member of Delta Kappa Epsilon Fraternity. Frank finally received a High School diploma from Saint Paul’s in 1985, ending his High School dropout status!

Frank and his sweetheart, Allan Jean Farwell, were married in September 1951 while still at Stanford, and last year celebrated their 69th anniversary. Frank and Allan have three children, Marty Chapman (Dave), Cindy Christeson (Jon), and Byron (Frances). They had nine grandchildren, and 10 great-grandchildren. Their granddaughter Amy was killed in a tragic car accident in 2007.

Frank was on active duty in the Navy from 1955 through 1958. He served as a Submarine Repair Officer in the Charleston Naval Shipyard. He was responsible for the alteration and repair work done on submarines while in the shipyard and subsequent test dives. He earned the permanent rank of Full Lieutenant and was in the process of attaining the rank of Lieutenant Commander when he finished his service. Frank was a life member of the Naval Submarine League.

In 1958, the Tranes moved to La Crosse and Frank worked for the Trane Company as a Manufacturing Engineer. He eventually held the position of General Superintendent of the La Crosse factories and became the U.S. Manager of Branch Plants. In 1966, Frank was awarded the honor of “Kentucky Colonel” by the Kentucky governor for building a factory in Lexington. Frank was on the Board of Directors for 24 years. The Trane Company was sold in 1984 to American Standard.

In 1963, the Tranes moved to Newport Beach, California where they continued to raise their family. Their children and grandchildren live in the area and over the years Frank and Allan’s home on Newport Bay has been the frequent family gathering place. Frank had the pleasure of being “Bapa” to the grandchildren and great-grandchildren. He kept them all laughing.

Frank loved surfing 80 days a year and kept at it until he was 85. He loved skiing and took the family to Snowmass 45 Februarys in a row. He and Allan played golf at Ironwood Country Club in Palm Desert where they had a home. He enjoyed hiking the desert and surrounding mountains and belonged to the Ironwood Hiking Club.

Frank and Allan liked cruising on small yachts all over the world, mostly on their boat “Hallélujah.” They enjoyed summer cruising to Moonstone Cove on Catalina Island. They enjoyed friendships at the Newport Harbor Yacht Club, the Cruising Club of America and the Santa Ana Country Club.

In 1965, Frank started a development company called Holiday Shores and fully developed over 5500 lots on the Arizona side of the Colorado River. In the late 1960’s Frank was one of the founding trustees of Harbor Day School where 12 members of the family have attended.

Frank was an active member of Saint James Anglican Church and served as treasurer and senior warden. Frank studied the first 5 centuries of the Christian Church and loved teaching the Great Reformation of the 16th Century from an Anglican perspective.

In 1990, Frank decided to devote his full time to church work. He was one of the founders of the American Anglican Council, which helped form the Anglican Church in North America, consisting now of more than 1000 parishes. Frank was made an Honorary Lay Canon of the Church in 2013.

In 2013, without his knowledge, Frank’s desert Bible study group created and funded the Frank Trane Cross on the Hill Endowment Scholarship Fund for King’s Schools in Palm Desert. Frank enjoyed corresponding with scholarship winners. One can still see the 30-foot lighted aluminum cross designed, built, and erected by Frank in 1996 to replace its damaged wooden predecessor high on a Palm Desert hill.

Frank will be remembered for his love of God and family, his generosity, his wisdom, his many athletic abilities, his humor and his limericks. He could fix anything – electrical, mechanical and plumbing, be it in the house or on the boat, and his happy humming let us know where he was at all times.

Frank always said that his true legacy was his beloved wife Allan of 69 years and family. All 29 members of the four generations of his family live within 10 miles of each other and enjoy spending time together. Their shared Christian faith continues to bond them together.

that day. "It was a sad sight to see. There was some occasional cheering involved. Obviously, people were out there showing their respects, but it was quite a scene, man. It was overwhelming. A lot of emotional spectators."

John Altobelli, who won four California Community College Athletic Assn. state championships in his 27 years at the helm, was honored as Orange Coast College shared a virtual memorial video on YouTube.

The 40-minute video featured remarks from Pirates close to Altobelli, including his brother, sports information director Tony Altobelli, as well as head baseball coach Nate Johnson. OCC Athletic Director Jason Kehler, President Angelica Loera Suarez and Dean of Kinesiology and Athletics Michael Sutliff also gave remarks.

Johnson was named head coach last July, shedding the interim title he was given after John Altobelli's death.

"I could tell stories all day long," Johnson said. "I definitely miss those three [John, Keri and Alyssa Altobelli]. It's never easy to talk about. I thank all of you guys for the support that you showed myself and this team through last year ... Remember those that were on the helicopter today.

"Make today count. That was 'Alto's' favorite saying, 'Make today the best day,' and I know he lived that way. He instilled it in our players. He talked constantly about that you never what's going to happen ... [but] make today a great day, and make every day a great day. Appreciate what you have, love your family, but more important, make today a great day."

Tony Altobelli, a former Daily Pilot sportswriter, put his brother's four state championship rings behind him during his speech. The first one, earned in 2009, came after one of the Pirates' players, catcher Jourdan Watanabe, died during the season.

"It's wonderful that his memory is never going to be forgotten," Tony Altobelli said. "It's painful, but you have to get through it. I hope this video helps other people get through it, because that's what John would want. John would say, 'Enough's enough. Let's move on and let's love life, love life, hug each other and tell everyone we love each other and share wonderful stories and memories.' I know that's exactly what we're going to do when we get back on campus again. I can't wait to spend the rest of my career at Orange Coast keeping John's memory alive and telling stories."

Altobelli closed out his speech with a quote from new President Joe Biden, spoken at a COVID-19 memorial the night before his inauguration.

"To heal, we must remember," he said. "It's hard sometimes to remember, but that's how we heal."

Christina Mauser's husband Matt, a musician who is the lead singer of local band Tijuana Dogs, put on a concert with the Pete Jacobs Big Band on Tuesday evening. Proceeds from the fundraiser benefitted the Christina Mauser Foundation.

(This authority will allow the personal representative to take many actions without obtaining court approval. Before taking certain very important actions, however, the personal representative will be required to give notice to interested persons unless they have waived notice or consented to the proposed action.) (1) If you plan to appear, you must attend the hearing by video remote using the court's designated video platform; (2) Go to the court's website at <http://www.occourts.org/media-relations/probate-mental-health.html> to appear for probate hearings and for remote hearing instructions; (3) If you have difficulty connecting to your remote hearing, call 657-622-8278 for assistance.
IF YOU OBJECT to the granting of the petition, you should appear at the hearing and state your objections or file written objections with the court before the hearing. Your appearance may be in person or by your attorney.
IF YOU ARE A CREDITOR or contingent creditor of the decedent, you must file your claim with the court and mail a copy to the personal representative appointed by the court within the later of either (1) four months from the date of first issuance of letters to a general personal representative, as defined in section 58(b) of the California Probate Code, or (2) 60 days from the date of mailing or personal delivery to you of a notice under section 9052 of the California Probate Code. Other California statutes and legal authority may affect your rights as a creditor. You may want to consult with an attorney knowledgeable in California law.
YOU MAY EXAMINE the file kept by the court. If you are a person interested in the estate, you may file with the court a Request for Special Notice (form DE-154) of the filing of an inventory and appraisal of estate assets or of any petition or account as provided in Probate Code section 1250. ries of closures and reopenings, the restaurant has been subsisting on carryout orders and deliveries that can be handled in house.

Now, Byrne is making plans to set up some tables and chairs in an adjacent bank parking lot as soon as the weather improves. Already having cut staff from nine people to three, Roux is doing what it can to hang on.

"We're a little place, and we were down to nothing," said Byrne, who has weathered the storm with the help of assistance programs offered by the city of Laguna Beach. "We're not in a place to go out and buy a lot of tables and things. But we'll do it."

This week's easing of restrictions marks a statewide shift away from peak hospitalizations and new infections seen since the Thanksgiving holiday.

California's 14-day average testing positivity rate fell from 13.6% two weeks earlier to 9.4% on Sunday. COVID-19 hospitalization rates also fell by 19.8% since Jan. 11, while health officials saw a 9.5% decrease in the rate of COVID-19 patients requiring intensive care, according to reports.

In Southern California, a region comprising Orange County and 10 other jurisdictions, the four-week projected aggregated ICU capacity jumped to 33.3% — above the 15% capacity required for stay-at-home orders to be lifted.

Meanwhile, Orange County health officials on Tuesday reported 1,365 new cases of coronavirus and 64 deaths, bringing the countywide case count to 225,983 and pushing the fatality rate to 2,768.

Area hospitals reported treating 1,677 residents for COVID-19, 26% of whom — or 437 individuals — were being cared for in intensive care units, the agency reported.

The county's seven-day average of new cases dropped from 67.1 per 100,000 residents recorded on Monday to 46.6, according to Tuesday's figures.

Another 13,849 tests were reported on Tuesday, bringing the cumulative number to 2,587,867 and accounting for a seven-day average testing positivity rate of 12.9%, down from 16.7% reported Monday.

Here are the latest cumulative coronavirus case counts and COVID-19 deaths for select cities in Orange County:

- Newport Beach: 3,208 cases; 46 deaths
- Fountain Valley: 3,025 cases; 43 deaths fell into the first season of the 2020-21 school year to schedule additional regular season and league contests.

The last date of competition for cross-country is now Saturday, March 27. All other impacted fall sports are in the "orange" tier, the end dates for which are as follows: eight-man football, April 3; football, April 17; water polo and girls' volleyball, March 20.

Some leagues already have a schedule put together while awaiting approval for their schools to compete. The Orange Coast League has dual meets scheduled to take place on Wednesday of each week, beginning Feb. 17.

Costa Mesa and Estancia are part of the Orange Coast League. Both are in the Newport-Mesa Unified School District, as are Corona del Mar and Newport Harbor, which reside in the Sunset Conference.

"With the governor lifting the stay at home order, we will be following the [California Department of Public Health] guidelines, which allow for certain outdoor, low-contact sports to begin inter-team competition," district spokeswoman Annette Franco said, adding that the district would be working with coaches and athletics staff to determine details with how and when to proceed with the resumption of athletics.

Laguna Beach is also a member of the Sunset Conference. Laguna Beach Unified School District officials said in a statement Tuesday that the high school's cross-country team continues to work out under CDPH guidelines, and the district is looking into beginning competition.

The Garden Grove Unified School District, which includes Los Amigos, will be discussing the return of high school athletics with the leagues that it is a part of.

"As news was received yesterday from the governor about the regional stay-at-home order being lifted, the Garden Grove Unified School District will be meeting with the three leagues we belong to — Garden Grove League, Empire League and Golden West League — to discuss competition for cross-county as well as youth sports guidelines," district spokeswoman Abby Broyles said. "We are still in the 'purple' tier as a county and remain in strength and conditioning in stable cohorts for all other sports."

The CIF State office released updated guidelines for all sports on Friday, Jan. 22. For cross-country, the guidelines called for masks to be worn and social distancing to be adhered to by all at a meet when they are not in a race.

The finish line area is to be modified to allow for physical distancing, and a further suggestion asks for consideration to be given for courses to be no less than 6 feet wide at their narrowest point.
