HOW THE POLL WAS CONDUCTED

This Los Angeles Times poll is one of a series of surveys undertaken to sample the opinions of voters as they participate in key elections. This particular exit poll was conducted nationally and in California during the November 7 presidential general election.

The sampling frame for this exit poll is all voters in the nation. Eight thousand two hundred eighteen voters were interviewed on November 7, 2000, as they left 140 polling places across the nation. The sample included 3,474 California voters interviewed as they exited 51 polling places across the state. Precincts were chosen based on the pattern of turnout in past general elections. The survey was a self-administered confidential questionnaire and was offered in English and Spanish. Interviews at the precinct level were conducted by Davis Research of Calabasas, Calif., and Schlesinger Associates of Edison, N. J.

The entire sample of general election voters has a margin of error of three percentage points. For some subgroups the error margin may be somewhat higher. Because the survey does not include absentee voters or those who declined to participate when approached, actual returns and demographic estimates by the interviewers were used to slightly adjust the sample. In addition, telephone interviews were conducted prior to the election with California voters who had already voted, or were highly likely to vote, by absentee ballot, and these were modeled in with the exit poll interviews. (About 25% of California voters vote by absentee ballot.)

Surveys of this kind may also be subject to errors not associated with sampling methods but resulting instead from the practical difficulties involved in conducting any survey of public opinion.

The Los Angeles Times Poll is directed by Susan Pinkus under the general supervision of Karen Wada, assistant managing editor. Jill Darling Richardson is the assistant director, Roger Richardson is the field director, Claudia Vaughn is the data management supervisor, Ray Enslow is the publications coordinator and Patricia De La Cruz is the secretary/researcher.
