YOUNGSTERS AND PARENTS at a "Let the Kids Breathe" rally in front of Orange County Department of Education building in Costa Mesa on Monday.

Parents protest mask rules from O.C. education officials

Hundreds of people rally Monday to object to mandates requiring children to remain masked at school.

BY SARA CARDINE

As pandemic protocols on face coverings begin to loosen — and vaccinated Californians ponder a mask-free future that could start as soon as June 15 — local demonstrators on Monday urged Orange County education officials to "let the kids breathe."

Hundreds of parents, many with small children in tow, turned out at the Costa Mesa office of the county's Department of Education to sound a rallying cry against mandates requiring children to remain masked throughout the school day.

The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention recently updated its guidelines for K-12 schools, recommending mask-wearing through the end of the current school year while children under 12 are still unable to receive the COVID-19 vaccine.

At Monday's demonstration, however, a decidedly different narrative predominated.

COSTA MESA mom Maren Chen shared concerns about making small children mask up while at school at Monday's demonstration.

"These masks — they're not going to protect you from this virus," said Costa Mesa mom and holistic nutritionist Kristi Acuña. "You have a soaking wet, chemical-filled napkin on your face, and you're inhaling it back in. Common sense will tell anybody this is toxic."

Rain and cool temperatures did not deter a crowd, whose size organizers placed at more than 350, from airing grievances against restrictions they say have run amok and sharing stories of children shamed or punished by administrators for pulling their masks down to draw a breath.

They came hoping their outcry might move Orange County officials to take action. But undoing a portion of a statewide mandate is not under OCDE's purview, spokesman Ian Hanigan clarified Monday.

"The Orange County Department of Education is not authorized to make decisions on the use of face coverings or social distancing in schools, nor would we be empowered to create any policies related to public health," Hanigan said in an email.

"By law and by practice, we follow and share guidance from the California Department of Public Health and the Orange County Health Care Agency," he continued.

Although asking county officials for relief may be a non-starter, concern among parents still runs high.

Costa Mesa resident Hengameh Abraham, representing the Greater Costa Mesa Republicans, described how her 6-year-old son recently forgot to take his mask to school and was thrown into a panic out of fear of getting in trouble or, worse, dying from COVID-19.

"It took us the whole weekend to convince him COVID is not going to kill him," she said. "The brainwashing and the damage they have been doing to children is going to have a lasting effect."

"Keep pushing us, and you will see every mom and grandmother

Move to next tier set for Orange County

Advancing to the yellow level on Wednesday will alleviate restrictions on businesses imposed during the pandemic.

BY ANDREW TURNER

Orange County will move Wednesday into the yellow tier, the least restrictive in the Blueprint for a Safer Economy, California's four-tiered system that has guided COVID-19 reopening, county officials announced Tuesday.

The county meets the criteria for the yellow tier in three key metrics, with an adjusted daily case rate of 1.5 cases per 100,000 residents. Its testing positivity rate and health equity quartile positivity rate were both at 0.9% as of Tuesday.

Those metrics are kept as seven-day averages with a seven-day lag.

The adjusted daily case rate, which requires fewer than two daily new cases per 100,000 residents to reach the yellow tier, had been the last area for the county to satisfy.

Orange County dipped below the threshold last week, when it reported 1.8 daily new cases per 100,000 residents.

The yellow tier designation will allow businesses to expand operations to levels not seen by many since restrictions were imposed to mitigate the spread of the coronavirus.

Newport insurance agent faces additional charges

Robert Andrew Lotter and Charles Albert Major of Irvine are alleged to have defrauded more than 40 people.

BY LILLY NGUYEN

The California Department of Insurance announced Monday that additional charges were filed against a Newport Beach insurance executive alleged to have defrauded more than 40 people.

In November last year, Robert Andrew Lotter, 64, was arrested with his co-defendant, Charles Albert Major, 72, of Irvine.

Court records indicate that Lotter and Major have denied dozens of felony charges against them that include untrue statements or omission in connection with purchase or sale; use of a device, scheme or artifice to defraud; and burglary.

Charges currently date as far back as 2005 and as recent as 2018.

At the time of their arrest, investigators said more than 20 victims were identified. By Monday, there were 44.

"My department's continued investigation into this alleged securities fraud has uncovered nearly two dozen new victims in this far-reaching scam, which now includes 44 victims who lost $7 million," state Insurance Commissioner Ricardo Lara said in a statement.

"By allegedly scheming to obtain victims' private information and push them into high-risk investments, these insurance agents took advantage of their position

Daily Pilot wins several statewide journalism awards

BY LILLY NGUYEN

The Daily Pilot brought home seven awards Tuesday in the 2020 California Journalism Awards Print Contest — four of which are for photos and three for news reporting.

Former editor David Carrillo-Peñaloza, who left the Daily Pilot earlier this year to be a multiplatform editor at the Los Angeles Times, offered his congratulations to his former staff, adding that he was "really proud of each and every one of [them]."

"The awards, they're nice to win," Carrillo-Peñaloza said. "But [they], you know, ... worked tirelessly through the summer and the pandemic and did fantastic work. [The Daily Pilot] winning these awards says a lot about the talent at Times Community News."

The Daily Pilot — a paper in the Times Community News division of the Los Angeles Times — competed in categories relative to its circulation size. The California News Publishers Assn. competition is held statewide.

"These awards mean so much because they are judged by our peers," said John Canalis, an assistant managing editor with the L.A. Times.

"They also put the spotlight on the importance of community journalism and how critical it is for us to not only watchdog city halls but to document community life and sports in words and pictures," Canalis said. "I am so proud of our Times Community News team."

"They do work that matters to our readers, who faithfully continue to support them."

In a year that began with tumult, photographer Don Leach won second, fourth and fifth place in a total of four categories — coverage of protests and racial justice, news, feature and sports action photos — with his snapshots throughout the last year.

"2020 was such a tough year for everyone, on so many levels. It was hard to stay motivated. Things really slowed down with the cancellations and shutdowns, so I'm really happy to come away with meaningful images from things that did occur," he said.

"It's nice to be recognized for your work and I'm really happy I placed. Without having an office as a base, and not seeing everyone, it's a challenge to stay motivated," Leach added. "I'm really stoked I won, I must be doing something right."

Leach won second place for a photo he took during a Black Lives Matter protest last summer and for one documenting a solemn moment of a prayer in the immediate aftermath of the death of basketball giant Kobe Bryant.

He captured fifth place for sports with a photo of wrestlers at Newport Harbor High School earlier in the year and a fourth-place award for a feature photo of people helping a veteran out of the water.

to support businesses and to communicate to residents," Newport Beach Mayor Brad Avery said Tuesday.

"Of course, from the very beginning, we were just so caught off guard, and the catch up was an amazing thing to look now, a year later, we're on the way out of it.

"Last December [and] January, nobody was sure at all about being ready for summer, to enjoy life as we knew it, by Memorial Day or July 4. Here we are."

In a news release on Tuesday, the county stated that an estimated 1,154,311 doses of COVID-19 vaccines had been administered at county points of distribution through Monday.

Vaccine appointments continue to be made available by visiting othena.com, or by calling the Orange County COVID-19 hotline at (714) 834-2000.

"Our community resilience helped bring us to this phase of the pandemic," Orange County Supervisor Katrina Foley said via text.

"The willingness to embrace social distancing and masking along with 2 million-plus residents already vaccinated is being rewarded, and I can't wait to join others for [an] endless summer of fun."

The county reported 48 new cases and no additional fatalities due to the virus in the latest data provided by the Orange County Health Care Agency on Tuesday.

To date, there have been 5,031 coronavirus deaths and 254,831 cases of the virus reported in the county.

There are currently 78 hospitalizations county-wide because of the virus. Among those patients, 14 are being treated in intensive care units.

The agency also reported 6,145 additional tests for the virus, bringing the number of tests administered to 3,814,553. An estimated 248,148 people in the county have made a recovery after contracting the virus.

of trust and fiduciary responsibility."

Lotter and Major allegedly reached out to clients of Lotter's insurance agency — R.A. Lotter Insurance Marketing, Inc. — and used a variety of schemes to solicit and fraudulently obtain private financial information in order to identify potential investors for Lotter's high-risk investments.

They sold clients stock certificates in Lotter's companies, eAgency, Inc. and Mymobilewatchdog, Inc.

The agency is alleged to have misled several clients to believe that it was authorized or affiliated with the California State Teachers' Retirement System, which provides retirement pension advice to state public school educators.

Some clients did not discover that it wasn't authorized by CalSTRS until they'd invested substantial amounts of money in eAgency, Inc. and Mymobilewatchdog, Inc.

They were told that profits were "just around the corner" and were presented with newspaper articles and televised interviews with Lotter in them to placate concerns and strengthen their confidence, according to investigators.

State officials said both companies were in poor financial status and that clients were not notified when supposedly lucrative partnerships fell through and were led to believe that their investments in Lotter's companies were still viable.

Arraignment for the additional charges occurred on May 12. Both Lotter and Major are currently out on bail, but are expected to appear in court June 24 at the Central Justice Center in Santa Ana.

second and third place in the categories of coverage of youth and education and feature stories.

"Being able to tell stories for a living is, in a way, its own reward," Cardine said on Tuesday. "Still, it feels great when our local coverage is recognized by others in the industry."

Last summer, Cardine reported on the Orange County Board of Education and its efforts to redefine the reopening guidelines for schools — beginning with a move in July to approve recommendations to send students back that sharply contrasted against that of neighboring Los Angeles and San Diego.

The guidelines were controversial and, ultimately, ended with the Orange County Board of Education announcing in August that it intended to sue Gov. Gavin Newsom to allow students to return to in-person classes that fall after Newsom's July 17 order to mandate counties under state monitoring for high rates of transmission of COVID-19 to return to distance learning in the fall.

In December, Cardine also reported from the Orange County fairgrounds in Costa Mesa on a herd of goats that were tasked with clearing up a steep 2-acre berm surrounding the Pacific Amphitheatre. The hope is that their arrival may restore the berm's soil resiliency. That story was published on Dec. 28.

Reporter Andrew Turner won fourth place in breaking news for a story on the local baseball community mourning the death of Orange Coast College baseball coach John Altobelli, his wife Keri and daughter Alyssa, who were among the victims in a Calabasas helicopter crash that took the lives of Kobe Bryant and eight others.

"I would like to thank Sara Cardine, Lilly Nguyen, Matt Szabo and Carol Cornmaci for their hard work and continued support," Turner said on Tuesday.

"I would also like to thank John Canalis and Steve Virgen, who hired me, former editor David Carrillo-Peñaloza, and our photo department for keeping this ship running so we can do what we love to do in covering our communities.

"We're a pretty good team," Turner said. "We have a newsroom full of talented, hard-working journalists and I'm thrilled that Don, Sara and Andrew were recognized by the [California News Publishers Assn.] judges for their outstanding efforts to document life as it unfolded here during 2020, a particularly trying year," said managing editor Carol Cornmaci. "My warmest congratulations to all of them."

ORANGE COUNTY resident Peggy Hall urges parents to send their kids to school without masks.

here, we will pull our kids out of school," she continued.

Many protesters bore signs decrying facial coverings and government overreach — one banner demanded the ouster of Orange County Health Care Agency Director Clayton Chau — while others affirmed the importance of parent choice and standing against tyranny.

Still others took a more lighthearted approach, such as kid-held placards that read: "Think of all the smiles I've missed."

Costa Mesa mom Maren Chen's sign bore the beaming face of her 6-year-old son, Rowan, and the words "Masking this face is a disgrace." She said the mask-wearing habits of kindergartners leaves much to be desired.

"[Masks] come home disgusting and unsanitary — it's more of a health hazard," Chen added. "At this point, there's absolutely no reason to keep masks on at school. It hinders their learning and, frankly, it's gross."

Rowan, who ran and played in the parking lot outside the OCDE office while his mom listened to speakers, said he didn't favor facial coverings.

"I really don't like wearing masks all the time," he said. "I think it's boring. They don't make me breathe good, and it makes me want to take it off."

Layla Beck, 9, of San Juan Capistrano agreed.

"I can't breathe in a mask," she said. "I just think it's sad for a child to have to get the vaccine and to have to wear a mask."

Some speakers wondered aloud why it was OK for people to go unmasked in restaurants and stores when kids, who pose a much lower risk of infection, must remain covered at school. Others encouraged parents to take definitive action.

Huntington Beach Mayor Pro Tem Tito Ortiz — whose refusal to wear a mask recently caused the City Council to continue holding its meetings virtually, as opposed to in person — relayed how his own son was worried about being teased by friends for noncompliance.

"I said, you know what, you stand up and say 'I'm taking my mask off because I need to breathe,'" Ortiz said. "If we don't stand our ground and do what we need to do for our children's future, we're going to look back [one day] and say, 'What the hell happened?'"

Peggy Hall, a former teacher and devout anti-masker who started the mask-opposition website the Healthy American to inform residents of legal ways to evade mask mandates, called the coronavirus a hoax and said she'd rather die starving in the street than participate in the "Luciferian ritual" of mask wearing.

"You have the power — send your child back to school without a mask on," she told parents. "That's all you need to do. Stand up to tyranny. It's the difference between slavery and freedom."

Sarah Beck, mother of 9-year-old Layla, was involved in previous rallies outside the OCDE office, like one held in September to ask schools to reopen. Having petitioned school board members to lift the mask mandate, she's now taking her complaints to the county.

A former teacher who earned her master's degree, Beck doesn't like mask wearing and distance learning, but also doesn't like being lumped in with right-wing Trump supporters. She wishes there were some way for people on both sides of the debate to find common ground.

"I almost feel like there's this push to divide us," she said. "I just wish there was more compassion and reason and understanding on both sides. Because division isn't going to help."

You will be bidding on a lien, not on the property itself. Placing the highest bid at a trustee auction does not automatically entitle you to free and clear ownership of the property. You should also be aware that the lien being auctioned off may be a junior lien. If you are the highest bidder at the auction, you are or may be responsible for paying off all liens senior to the lien being auctioned off, before you can receive clear title to the property. You are encouraged to investigate the existence, priority, and size of outstanding liens that may exist on this property by contacting the county recorder's office or a title insurance company, either of which may charge you a fee for this information. If you consult either of these resources, you should be aware that the same lender may hold more than one mortgage or deed of trust on the property. NOTICE TO PROPERTY OWNER: The sale date shown on this notice of sale may be postponed one or more times by the mortgagee, beneficiary, trustee, or a court, pursuant to Section 2924g of the California Civil Code. The law requires that information about trustee sale postponements be made available to you and to the public, as a courtesy to those not present at the sale. If you wish to learn whether your sale date has been postponed, and, if applicable, the rescheduled time and date for the sale of this property, you may call 916-939-0772 for information regarding the trustee's sale or visit this internet website <http://www.qualityloan.com>, using the file number assigned to this foreclosure by the Trustee: CA-19-870659-BF. Information about postponements that are very short in duration or that occur close in time to the scheduled sale may not immediately be reflected in the telephone information or on the internet website. The best way to verify postponement information is to attend the scheduled sale. NOTICE TO TENANT: You may have a right to purchase this property after the trustee auction pursuant to Section 2924m of the California Civil Code. If you are an "eligible tenant buyer," you can purchase the property if you match the last and highest bid placed at the trustee auction. If you are an "eligible bidder," you may be able to purchase the property if you exceed the last and highest bid placed at the trustee auction. There are three steps to exercising this right of purchase. First, 48 hours after the date of the trustee sale, you can call 916-939-0772, or visit this internet website <http://www.qualityloan.com>, using the file number assigned to this foreclosure by the Trustee: CA-19-870659-BF to find the date on which the trustee's sale was held, the amount of the last and highest bid, and the address of the trustee. Second, you must send a written notice of intent to place a bid so that the trustee receives it no more than 15 days after the trustee's sale. Third, you must submit a bid so that the trustee receives it no more than 45 days after the trustee's sale. If you think you may qualify as an "eligible tenant buyer" or "eligible bidder," you should consider contacting an attorney or appropriate real estate professional immediately for advice regarding this potential right to purchase. The undersigned Trustee disclaims any liability for any incorrectness of the property address or other common designation, if any, shown herein. If no street address or other common designation is shown, directions to the location of the property may be obtained by sending a written request to the beneficiary within 10 days of the date of first publication of this Notice of Sale. If the sale is set aside for any reason, including if the Trustee is unable to convey title, the Purchaser at the sale shall be entitled only to a return of the monies paid to the Trustee. This shall be the Purchaser's sole and exclusive remedy. The purchaser shall have no further recourse against the Trustor, the Trustee, the Beneficiary, the Beneficiary's Agent, or the Beneficiary's Attorney. If you have previously been discharged through bankruptcy, you may have been released of personal liability for this loan in which case this letter is intended to exercise the note holders right's against the real property only.
